Mrs. Ferguson Held Qualified To Be Governor

INJUNCTION DENIED TO CUT HER NAME OFF TEXAS BALLOT

District Judge Holds Neither Constitution Nor Statutes Bar Women From Office.

APPEAL IS TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT

Old Common Law of England Held Not Applicable, as Woman's Status Has Changed.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Austin, Texas, September 29.—Brushing aside all the old common law barriers against the right of women to hold office, Judge George C. Calhoun, in 53d district court, today ruled that Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is legally qualified to be governor of Texas.

In an opinion, which Mrs. Ferguson's lawyers said was a thorough exposition of the law and a complete vindication of the position of the first woman nominee for governor, Judge Calhoun declared that neither the constitution of the state nor the statutes of the legislature bar women from office. He refused to grant a temporary injunction to restrain election officials from placing her name on the ballot, which was requested by the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson, of San Antonio.

Straight to Supreme Court.

The trial court's decision clears the way to bring the case up for final adjudication by the supreme court. The plaintiff's attorney, L. W. Stephens, of Fort Worth, gave notice of an appeal to the court of civil appeals. In order to get the matter before the supreme court without arguments in the court of civil appeals, it will be necessary for the latter tribunal to certify the questions to the supreme court. The parties to the suit have practically agreed that this procedure will be followed. The supreme court meets next Monday for the term and it is expected this case will come before it during the coming week.

Neither Mrs. Ferguson nor her husband, James E. Ferguson, were in court to hear the judge's opinion, which her attorney said, was all that they could have hoped for.

The court held first that he had jurisdiction to hear the case and that Mr. Dickson had the right as a private citizen to start the proceedings. Having cleared away these technical obstacles, Judge Calhoun went immediately into the heart of the question as to whether women have the right to hold office under present laws.

Women Equal to Men.

Going back into the common law of England, on the principles of which the plaintiff had grounded his suit, the court explained that women were not allowed to hold office under the old common law, principally because a custom to that effect had grown up. It was based on the assumption that women were too delicate for the arduous duties attendant upon official duties and were not educated to the point where they could

NORWEGIAN KING FEARS TO VISIT IN UNITED STATES

New York, September 29.—King Haakon, of Norway, used to think he would like to visit the United States, and perhaps shoot a few buffalo in Buffalo, N. Y., or a few Indians on the streets of Indianapolis.

However, Mme. Charlotte Lund, a singer, who arrived here Monday on the steamship Stavangerfjord, said the kind told her he certainly wasn't going to take the social punishment that was meted out to his nephew, the Prince of Wales. Therefore, he will stay home.

Residents of the Long Island social colony are not particularly grieved because the king isn't coming. They cultivated the Londonese manner of speech for the prince, but a lot of them were frank enough to admit that they couldn't speak Scandinavian dialect.

COMMITTEE OPENS SOLDIERS' HOME PROBE THURSDAY

Legislative Investigation of Conditions at Old Soldiers' Home To Begin at Capitol.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES AGAINST M'ALLISTER

Accusations Were Made by U. D. C. Chapters During Last Session of Legislature.

The special legislative committee, appointed at the recent general assembly to investigate sensational charges, involving gross mismanagement and maltreatment of the inmates of the Old Soldiers' Home, made by the Atlanta and Fulton county chapters of United Daughters of the Confederacy, will meet in the senate chamber at 10 o'clock Thursday morning to investigate conditions existing at the home.

The committee, consisting of five members from the house and three from the senate, was named after a resolution had been passed by both houses providing for appointment of such a committee to make an investigation. It consists of the following members of the lower house: Dr. W. K. Smith, of Bryan county, chairman; W. B. Bell, of Burke county; A. Sidney Camp, of Coweta county; J. A. Dixon, of Jenkins county; Judge W. R. Jones, of Meriwether county; and from the senate, E. B. Latimer, of the 39th district; Frank S. Loftin, of the 37th district, and A. H. Henderson, of the 32d district.

To Make Report.

In accordance with provisions of the resolution, the committee will report its findings back to the general assembly when it convenes for next session, and it will be decided whether any action will be taken in the matter at that time.

The charges were made against Captain W. E. McAllister, superintendent of the Old Soldiers' Home, by representatives of the two U. D. C. chapters before a meeting of the Invalid, Pensioners and Soldiers' Home committee of the house of representatives. Among other things, Captain McAllister was charged with having sold wool, cut from the home's property, and converting the money to his own use; that conditions at the hospital of the home were "filthy and were wholly not conducive to good health and happiness."

Bill Failed.

After a two-day hearing of the case, at which charge after charge was hurled at the management of the home, each of which Captain McAllister denied, the committee recommended favorably for passage a bill which would have automatically relieved Captain McAllister of his duties of superintendence of the home, in that it contained certain specifications for the superintendent which he did not possess. The rules committee of the house, however, declined to place the measure on the regular calendar, and it was lost in the last-minute jam of bills. It was then that the resolution was passed to appoint a committee to investigate the management and conditions existing at the home.

World Cruise of "The Shark" Proves 'Bust' After 100 Miles

DEMETRIOS' CASKS LEAKED AND HE LOST HIS SEXTANT

New York, September 29.—Demetrios Sigelakis will soon be back at the soup kitchens of the little Greek restaurant over on the Jersey water front where, for years, in the savory mists of the slum and jumbo he saw visions of strange seaports and palm fringed tropic isles.

Demetrios is the lunch-counter waiter who sailed away from the battery New York about two weeks ago to prow the seven seas in a little tea-cup of a boat that he had built, rigged himself, and christened "The Shark." A thousand of his countrymen, many of them clients of his lunch room, were down at the sea-wall to cheer him away as Demetrios cast off and bent his gray main sail to the harbor breeze.

"Farewell," he declaimed with the manner of a modern Demosthenes, as he stood on the tinside of his little cabin, sweeping a gesture at the crowd on the park bulkhead. "Farewell, my countrymen, I, Demetrios Sigelakis, go to seek truth and beauty in the far places of the world. I shall honor my eyes with visions of the icebergs and the tropical seas by moonlight. I shall feed my soul upon the banquets of solitude."

And a lot more stuff like that.

Demetrios and the "Shark" were about 100 miles off the Long Island coast when Capt. Johnson of the fishing smack, Montauk took them in tow. The fresh water casks had split their staves when the "Shark" was tossed by the sea, and the dreamy-eyed skipper's sextant had fallen into the sea. On the whole, the voyage might be summed up in round numbers as a terrible bust.

Demetrios tied up his boat at a friendly dock and went scouting for his old job at the soup kitchens.

MAGNUS JOHNSON DUE FOR LICKING BY SCHALL

Democratic Organization in State Is Sketchy. Farmers Are Backing Off From La Follette.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Minneapolis, Minn., September 29.—Most of the German voters are progressive in the same way that much of the south is democratic—that is to say, for a single dominating reason.

Good judges here think these Germans will remain radical about as long as the south has remained democratic. At republican headquarters in Chicago, it is hoped, to turn the Germans away from the radicals within the next 30 days. Good judges here say this may be done as regards some German communities, but not as respects the upper Mississippi valley. The upper Mississippi valley was the location of the most conspicuous of these war-time incidents in which some public officials of German birth and ancestry took positions about the draft which no nation could safely tolerate.

In one city, for example, the elected officials, being German, took the ground that the boys could be drafted for service in America, but not overseas, and so advised the boys. On this and similar occasions, the representatives of the federal government and some American local officials were correspondingly drastic in what they did to the recalcitrant Germans.

Support Purely Sentimental.

The memory of these incidents is strong among the German voters and they are for La Follette because La

JACKIE COOGAN IS DANDLED BY POPE AND GIVEN MEDAL

Rome, September 29.—Jackie Coogan has been presented to Pope Pius and has received the holy father's blessing.

The pope received the American child actor in a fatherly manner and appeared to enjoy the boy's visit. He suggested that Jackie give a benefit performance for the Catholic orphanage when he reaches Athens, and the kid said he would do so.

Jackie was given a commemorative medal bearing the pope's effigy. The last one of this type to be given by the pope was given to King Alfonso of Spain. The Coogans were presented by Monsignor Walsh, bishop of Trenton.

Premier Mussolini is expected to be the next notable to grant Jackie an audience.

LEAGUE DEADLOCK ON JAP DEMANDS STILL UNBROKEN

Squabble Which Viciously Affects America Is Battle Between Japs and British Dominions.

DESPERATE EFFORTS TO AVOID BREAK MADE

Tokio Stands Firmly Behind Demands as Plans Are Made To Increase Emigration.

Geneva, September 29.—Shaken to its foundations by the Japanese threat to refuse to sign the disarmament, arbitration and security protocol in its present form, the league of nations is witnessing the biggest struggle yet staged on the hither side of the academic battle ground of Geneva.

There have been league squabbles in the past. The league was rocked when powerful Italy clashed with little Greece. But the present conflict is a major battle between two great league forces—the British dominions and Japan. On the sidelines, yet with interests vitally involved in any decisions taken, stands the United States, the most important world power outside the league.

Here Are Japs' Demands.

"The immediate issue has been raised by the Japanese demand for the right to bring before the council disputes arising from questions of purely domestic jurisdiction such as Japanese exclusion."

The immediate cause of Japan's assumption of this attitude lies in Japan's emigration difficulties with other nations. But if the amendment is accepted a situation is created opening up embarrassing possibilities in connection with domestic disputes of every other power by allowing outside interference.

Hope To Avoid Open Break.

With these tremendous issues at stake the league has been deadlocked for three days following Japan's introduction of her first amendment. A sub-committee of the first league commission discussed the situation lengthily Monday but failed to reach any conclusions. The sub-committee adjourned its session late in the day in the hope that private negotiations with the Japanese would prove more effective in weaning them from their viewpoint.

Although the majority of nations here are opposed, and many strongly opposed to the Japanese position, Japan has some powerful allies behind her demand. "The situation is a delicate one, and requires judicious handling. All other interests

1925 TAX DIGEST SHOWS INCREASE

Little Gain on Real Estate, While Personal Property Shows $11,000,000 Gain Over 1924.

Although the 1925 tax digest on real estate and personal property assessments has not been completed, indications are that there will be a very small increase in taxes received by the city from real estate, while personal property assessments will be approximately $11,000,000 more next year than this, it was stated Monday by J. C. Little, member of the city board of tax assessors.

Total real estate assessments for 1924 were $248,000,000, from which the city received taxes amounting to $3,920,000, or nearly half of the city's total revenue. On the other hand, while this year's personal property assessments were $89,000,000, they are expected to total approximately $100,000,000 in 1925.

The increase in personal property assessments is due largely to the work of five special tax inspectors, who for the past several months have been checking up back returns of personal property for taxation, and who have collected a considerable sum, it is said.

Decrease in assessments in compiling the 1925 digest on real estate assessments has not been finished, but present indications are that the increase will be small, with the possibility of no gain at all.

Work on equalizing assessments on residential property has occupied all the entire year so far, and has been done in much the same manner as for central business property last year, that of reassessing all property on a front-foot basis, plus assessment on any improvement on the property.

Decrease in valuation of property in part accounts for the lack of increase in the real estate assessment, Mr. Little said, and while many assessments have been raised, almost an equal number have been lowered under the equalization plan.

LOUISIANA REFUSES LA FOLLETTE LIST

Attorney General Holds That Only Registered Independent Voters Could Sign Petition.

Baton Rouge, La., September 29.—Secretary of State Bailey today refused to place the names of the La Follette-Wheeler electors on the ballot Louisiana voters will cast in the general election in November.

The attorney general's office held recently that only registered voters, who had declared themselves independent of affiliation with any recognized parties, legally could sign the petition necessary to place the names on the ballot. The petition, as presented to the secretary of state, contained largely the signatures of the voters who had declared themselves democrats when they registered.

COOLIDGE TELEGRAM IS MADE PUBLIC

New Orleans, La., September 29.—La Follette headquarters for Louisiana here gave out today the text of a telegram from President Coolidge with reference to the situation in this state, where La Follette-Wheeler electors have been barred from the ballot in the election in November because of a state law relating to party affiliation.

The message, which La Follette leaders said was received today, follows:

Regrets Situation.

"Replying to your telegram, it is my desire that full and free opportunity be afforded under the state laws of our country for an expression of the popular will in the election of all public officials. To my regret, there are states in the union where the law is such that this is not possible, and it is too late now to change such laws. While I am heartily in favor of party government, I believe that when a contest is made in a primary, which is open to participation of all the people, it should go far to determining what candidates are to be presented at a coming election.

"Nevertheless, I recognize that it is the privilege of our voters to support any one they wish at the polls and I feel that the laws should not be drawn for the purpose of preventing such action. I would apply this rule not only to your complaint about Louisiana, but to all the other states of the union.

"(Signed) Calvin Coolidge."

Leopold and Loeb Talk of Freedom In Prison Chapel

"Angel-Face Dickie" Most Discontented—Leopold Is Expert Rattan Weaver.

Joliet, Ill., September 29.—"Angel Face Dickie" Loeb, who dislikes visitors and making chairs, and his pal in the murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks, Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., had their second talk together Monday since they came here to spend the rest of their lives.

Loeb, fretful and impatient, met his companion in crime in the prison chapel. Leopold, who has developed into the best rattan weaver at Joliet, was the more composed of the two.

"When are we going to get out of here?" was the first thing Loeb said to Leopold.

"Get out? I didn't know we were going to get out," Leopold replied.

"Well, you never can tell," Loeb answered with that peculiar supercilious smile that he displayed during most of the hearing before Justice Caverly in Chicago.

"I don't think we'll be here forever," he added.

Development

You can't expect to build your life in a day—or your character in a single move. Real development means small beginnings faithfully enlarged on.

Development calls for the breaking of faulty habits and the slow, laborious formation of right ones. It's pleasant to "make up your mind" to do things, but changing your habits and doing things is the toughest kind of experience.

Don't run away from discouragement and hard work—and you'll find yourself on the way to overhaul your ambitions.

FIVE ARE KILLED AS TRAIN HITS CAR

Confusion in Orders, Plus Blinding Rain, Held Responsible for Fatal Collision.

Columbia, S. C., September 29.—Rounding a curve in a blinding rain, a railroad motor car crashed into an on-coming freight train of the Southern Railway today, resulting in the death of five men, one mile north of Peak, 23 miles from Columbia.

The dead, all of whom occupied the motor car, are: Killian Chapman, 30, white, of Peak; Heyward Meete, 22, white, of Littleton; James W. Daley, 21, white, of Peak; Charlie Brown and James Henderson, negroes, of Peak.

Confusion in orders, coupled with the blinding rain, are given as contributing causes of the collision.

Chapman was killed outright, while Meete and Brown died on a passenger train while being brought to Columbia. Daley and Henderson died in Columbia hospitals tonight.

"MURDERED MAN" DENIES HE'S DEAD OR EVEN INJURED

New Orleans, September 29.—When Milton Jacobs, a boiler maker of New Orleans, read a newspaper dispatch today from Houston, Texas, that he had been murdered, he was puzzled.

Texas advices last night stated a man's body found on the Goose creek road near Houston had been identified by a fellow worker as Jacobs. The identification was believed to have been partly confirmed when reporters inquired at an address where Jacobs had formerly resided here and were told that he had gone to Baytown, Texas, a small town near Houston, four months ago.

Jacobs when located today said he had been employed in Baytown a month and since had been in New Orleans. He knew of no one having papers or other articles that would identify him as Jacobs.

First Cold Wave Drives Away Rain After Wet Month

Clearing Skies and Drop in Temperature Bring Out Overcoats and Blankets.

While frigid northwestern blasts beat down on Atlanta and the entire south Monday night, the mercury was expected to sink to the 46-degree mark before 7 o'clock this morning. This announcement was made late Monday by C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local weather bureau, who declared that Atlanta would be gripped in the first fall cold wave for several days to come.

Monday morning gray clouds raced high in the face of a cold northwestern wind, and as they disappeared to reveal spots of blue, came promise not only of lower temperatures, but of fair weather.

As the skies cleared the wettest period ever experienced by Atlanta in the month of September came to an end, according to the weather bureau. During September it rained every day from September 13 to September 29, with the exception of one day. During this time 3.51 inches of rain fell. Earlier in the month, four other days were marked by steady rains, which were recorded at 1.72 inches, bringing the total for the month to 5.22 inches. The normal rainfall for September is 3.12 inches.

At 7 o'clock Monday morning the mercury was clinging unsteadily at the of the present assembly have been held up pending a solution of the problem, and those directly concerned with the preparation of the protocol are endeavoring to smooth out the tangle without a complete break. Members of the council met jointly Monday with the subcommittee considering the amendment.

See Race War As Issue.

Private negotiations for the settlement of the Japanese deadlock are being conducted largely through the French who, it is said, have a formula which they hope may be accepted during Tuesday's debates.

It is known that one method of solution under discussion is to quit entirely from the protocol the question in dispute.

The Japanese delegation, commenting on the deadlock, emphasizes the importance of the present crisis to Japan and to the United States, and adds that Latin America, Britain and the British dominions are all vitally interested for various reasons and will not sacrifice a particle of their internal sovereignty.

The newspaper declares that the question is not whether the league will be able to launch her disarmament project but, whether, sooner or later, a war will occur between Japan and Anglo-Saxon states bordering on the Pacific ocean.

JAP DELEGATE ACTS ON INSTRUCTIONS.
Tokyo, September 29.—The Japanese cabinet has decided to maintain a firm attitude on the question of reservations to the disarmament, arbitration and security protocol now advanced at Geneva.

M. Adachi, Japanese representative at the league, is following his instructions in objecting to the articles of the protocol regarding domestic disputes.

It is emphasized here that Japan believes that the court of arbitration should decide whether a question in dispute is internal or international, and also that the court should recommend a peaceful solution of a dispute which is decided to be an internal issue.

Meanwhile, with Japan fighting a battle at Geneva which centers largely on the emigration issue, the commissioner of emigration here is busy solving immediate emigration problems.

He is considering plans to send 10,000 emigrants yearly to South America instead of a thousand, as provided for in previous plans.

Commissioner Uchiyama, representing the foreign office, will leave in October for South America to investigate conditions there. Legislation regarding the transportation of emigrants and a subsidy for emigration will be introduced in the diet in December.

PARIS PAPERS FIND EXCUSE FOR JAPS.
Paris, September 29.—While emphasizing the gravity of the situation at Geneva, and the possibility involved that the entire work of the league of nations assembly may be seriously compromised, the leading French newspapers declare that the Japanese attitude is understandable and express the hope that a formula can be found as a basis for agreement.

The cabinet discussed the Geneva situation all morning and took the question up again in the afternoon.

Adachi's statement to the league is an impressive argument. The Temps says editorially, and shows how grave are the objections certain nations may have to the essential stipulations of the proposed disarmament-arbitration pact owing to their own particular situations.

"Owing to the differences which might arise between Japan and the United States because of the particularly humiliating barriers the Americans have established against Japanese, we understand in a certain measure Adachi's attitude." The Temps declares.

GERMANY OUTLINES ITS LEAGUE DESIRES.

Paris, September 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Leopold von Hoesch, German ambassador to France, today called upon Premier Herriot and handed to him a memorandum setting forth the conditions under which Germany will make application for membership in the league of nations.

The text of the memorandum will not be made public, but it is understood that the Germans lay down no conditions for membership, but make it clear that the reich will expect to have a permanent seat on the council of the league.

The memorandum also points out that in view of the limitations of the size and strength of the German army provided for in the treaty, the reich cannot undertake to participate in the application of sanctions under a guarantee pact, such as the one now under discussion at Geneva, although Germany offers no objections to the general principles of such an arrangement.

The document will be submitted to the cabinet meeting Thursday and the general impression in official circles is that it contains nothing which might form an insurmountable obstacle to France. It is made thereby, it is willing that Germany shall have a place on the council and is not disposed to raise difficulties unless the application for admission is accompanied with demands for exceptional treatment which, as was declared by M. Herriot in Geneva, the French would oppose.

VETERANS INVITED TO ARMS PARLEY.
Washington, September 29.—World war veterans expect to participate unofficially in the League of Nations armament conference next June, Colonel Thomas W. Miller, new president of the Inter-Allied World War Veterans' association, announces.

He has tendered his resignation as alien property custodian to President Coolidge and will leave soon for Paris to take up his new work.

His organization, Miller said, has been invited to have an unofficial observer at Geneva.

"While this is unofficial, it is an indication that the powers that be in the foreign countries realize that when they are making plans for a lasting peace they will receive the utmost of help from the men and women who suffered most directly from the privations of the recent war," Colonel Miller said.

FIRST COLD WAVE DRIVES AWAY RAIN.

66-degree mark, said Mr. von Herrmann. At noon it had dropped to 59.5 degrees and continued to drop steadily all during the afternoon and night.

With these indications and a steady wind from the northwest, Mr. von Herrmann was positive that overcoats and blankets not only would come into vogue but would be absolutely necessary to health and comfort.

Despite the abnormal rains during September, Mr. von Herrmann said, Flint and Chatahochee rivers experienced only a moderate rise.

BUTTS CROPS, ROADS DAMAGED BY RAINS.
Jackson, Ga., September 29.—(Special.)—As a result of the heavy rains in Butts county this week, all streams are swollen almost to the flood stage.

The immense reservoir of the Central Georgia Power company on the Ocmulgee river is full for the first time since early summer. Serious damage is reported to crops and roads of the county.

RAINS HURT COTTON IN BURKE COUNTY.
Waynesboro, Ga., September 29.—Today was the sixth consecutive day that Burke county has received a down-pour of rain. Cotton picking has been suspended with about 65 per cent of the cotton crop of the county picked. That left in the fields has been beaten off the plant and has begun to rot already. There is no way to save it.

The most conservative estimate for the county at the beginning of the picking season was 20,000 bales. Now it depends on when the rain stops and how much damage has been done by the long wet spell. Farmers are taking some comfort in the better market.

SWOLEN STREAMS MAROON TOURISTS.
Sparta, Ga., September 29.—(Special.)—Incessant rains which have fallen here for a week, are ruining the cotton which is open in the fields, as well as the velvet bean and pea crops. Farmers report here that their cotton is sprouting in the bolls. As highways are becoming almost impassable on account of the deluge of rain after such a dry season.

Creeks and rivers near here are swollen out of their banks, and many tourists are marooned at local hotels on account of high water.

FIRST FREEZE OF FALL.
Topeka, Kan., September 29.—The first freezing temperature of autumn prevailed over a large portion of Kansas last night with heavy frosts in the western part of the state. Late corn probably was injured in some parts of the state, according to S. D. Flora, weather bureau chief here.

MOOREHEAD, MINN., September 29.—Minnesota and North Dakota were visited by a severe killing frost in virtually every section last night.

Indianapolis, September 29.—Heavy frosts in the northern counties of Indiana last night resulted in considerable damage, according to reports today to the United States weather bureau.

RAINS DELAY HARVESTING IN CHATTOOGA COUNTY.

Summerville, Ga., September 29.—General and continuous rainfall during the past 10 days has delayed farm work in Chattooga county to a considerable extent, and cotton picking has been halted until the weather clears up.

Farmers throughout the county are making preparations for an unusually large amount of fall plowing, and, through the efforts of the county agricultural agent, B. M. Drake, many farmers have become interested in sowing clover both for soil improvement and for hay.

fill executive positions as well as men. He showed, however, that these conceptions of a woman's position had gradually changed as women had become more educated and general enlightenment spread until the old ideas had given way to the modern conception that women are in all things the equals of men.

Oral Opinion.
Judge Calhoun gave an oral opinion, stating that he had not had time to write his decision.

"The first question to determine is whether the plaintiff can maintain the suit. The legislature has laid down specific cases under which an injunction can be granted. The ordinary rules of equity can not apply. Under the rules a man without special interest could not bring such a suit except through the officers of the law. But in the remedy provided by the legislature the plaintiff is not debarred by the rules of equity. He comes within the purview of the statute and that contention of the defense must fail.

Question of Jurisdiction.
"The next question is, has the court jurisdiction. The legislature has the right to determine the eligibility of candidates for election, but it has no power to pass on the qualifications of a candidate until after election. The court, therefore, has jurisdiction of such a matter and the defendant's contention of this ground must be overruled.

"Now, the plaintiff contends that Mr. Ferguson's impeachment disqualifies his wife. That is so narrow and technical an objection that to uphold it is to say that the taint on the entire family. A sound justice and fairness is against this. No matter what the husband does, the punishment in law is not visited on the entire family.

The next question is whether a married woman under the common law could hold office just because she is married. Under the common law and the statutes of this state, she could not. Under the common law, her husband was entitled to her salary. At least this is the contention of the plaintiff. Possibly it was so at common law, but the rights of women there were nothing. But when the republic of Texas adopted the common law it specifically reserved the right to control the laws governing married women and has since done away with this common-law rule about married women and their separate property.

"We have progressed to the point where women may have separate property and have a right in community property. They have a right to dispose of separate property. In fact, women can go into court and be emancipated from the control of their husband as far as her property is concerned. Therefore the contention that Mrs. Ferguson is disqualified because her husband might share in her salary is overruled.

Conspiracy Feature.
The next contention is that there was a conspiracy between Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson that he would be the real governor and she but a figurehead and articles from The Ferguson Forum are offered to show this. If we could always hold people responsible for what they say in political campaigns we could say that every candidate would disqualify himself, but this is a strictly political question left to the people and not to the courts. There is an adequate remedy to prevent her from carrying out any conspiracy if she is elected.

"The next and the most fundamental question is whether women are disqualified from holding office because of sex. We must look for the answer to this either under the common law or in the state constitution itself.

"The common law of England constituted a body of rules which grew out of the customs of the people and the decisions of judges. There is no question that the ancient custom became law and that under those customs a married woman was held not qualified to hold office. This was placed not on the ground that she was by law debarred, but on the ground that by usage and custom she should not attempt it. When the early common law was developed, the judges held to hold that it was not an absolute prohibition of the law, but that by custom it had become considered as the law.

GERMAN VOTE MAY NOT DECIDE RACE

Follette sympathized with them and spoke in their behalf, and their will be for La Follette and for La Follette's party so long as La Follette lives. At least that they should be radical in their views. This is not an anomalous, it is against all their natural instincts and customary point of view. They are substantial, property-owning citizens, fundamentally they oppose government ownership of railroads and are devoted to the sanctity of the constitution, nevertheless they accept La Follette's nostrums in order to express their devotion to the cause of conservatism.

This does not apply to all the Germans in Minnesota, but it does apply to the upper Minnesota valley. The republicans accept him as a leader and most of the German vote will be against them, and their hope and definite plan for carrying Minnesota consists in getting out so large a total vote as to reduce the republicans to a minority in the legislature. There are about one million, three hundred thousand voters in Minnesota. The highest vote ever actually cast has been 300,000. The republicans this year hope to bring out a million. If they do they will carry the state.

Farmers Are Balking.
The total German and Anglo-German vote is about 400,000. In addition to the German vote, La Follette has the labor vote fairly solid. In the cities, there is a considerable Jewish vote overlapping the German vote. Local authorities say the Jewish vote will be for La Follette. People out here ask the traveler whether it is true that La Follette will carry New York city.

They reason that because the Jewish vote in these western cities is for La Follette it will be for him in New York. The farmer vote in Minnesota is becoming less solid for La Follette. Among other reasons, when the La Follette campaign was organized here, leaders of the city specialist type were rather aggressive in taking control of the campaign. Many city specialists are foreigners. Foreigners in a sense other than German, Swedish or Norwegian. To them the Minnesota farmers do not talk kindly and so the independents among the farmers are not as sympathetic to La Follette as they are in some other states. Many of the Minnesota farmers are reacting to Coolidge.

Davis to Run Third Here.
As for Minnesota then, set it down that if the election had been held at any time up to date, La Follette would probably have won. By election day many republicans will probably get the impression that the organization succeeds in bringing out a big vote. As for Davis, he will run third. Many republicans will vote for him. The democrats in this state this year have no organization to speak of and no party spirit and are making no real effort. The republicans will probably gain a big victory. The democrats will vote for La Follette, some of the conservative ones will vote for Coolidge. The republicans will probably gain a big victory. The democrats will vote for La Follette, some of the conservative ones will vote for Coolidge. The republicans will probably gain a big victory. The democrats will vote for La Follette, some of the conservative ones will vote for Coolidge.

Must Do Much Work.
If the election were held in Washington state tomorrow, we would win," Colonel Blethen said. "But there is radicalism there, the kind that is not for anybody in particular, but which would go to La Follette and do a victory. We have the antidote for that. If La Follette goes into the state, all we need to do is to let General Dawes follow him and clarify the issues and voters can see the difference. The seven votes should not be in the Coolidge column. The same is true of California's 16 votes. Oregon is safely republican. We must take nothing for granted. We must fight for every electoral vote, for every inch of terrain. If we do that, the result will not be in doubt.

"We have the matter in a victory, but we must push the offensive. The same is true of Montana, for instance, and in some degree in Minnesota, where we now have an advantage. On my trip from the Pacific coast, I realized the popularity of President Coolidge and the confidence of the people in him. What we have to do is mobilize this sentiment and make it effective on November 4."

Schall Supporting Coolidge.
While Schall's republicanism in the regular sense is rather recent, he is playing the orthodox republican game of loyal campaign and talking for Coolidge. One effective stunt Schall did was to "smoke out" Magnus Johnson on the question whom he would vote for in the election. Schall was thrown into congress and the senate had to choose between Charles W. Bryan and General Dawes. Magnus said he would vote for Bryan. It is from this incident the probability is assumed that all the five or six La Follette senators would vote for Bryan and elect him. Whether this is true as to all the five or six is an easily determined question. This is an aspect of the situation about which there will be a good deal of commotion after and if the election should go into congress.

NATION'S BANKERS RADIATE OPTIMISM

he would like to get about $10,000. Hawes smiled and replied:

"That is easy, providing you have been industrious, your character is good, and you can find a banker who will lend you the money on your note."

Big Credits Available.
"The business man is insured of securing funds for increased activities at moderate rates," Hawes said. "Bank credit is available in large amounts. This is made possible through the brightening of the agricultural and industrial situations. I believe 1925 will be a better year even than 1924."

President Charles A. Hinrich, of the Fifty-third National Bank, Cincinnati, said:

"The Dawes plan will render the immense gold reserves of the reserve bank available for a basis of credit for short-time European credits on a dollar basis. This should find its reflection in a domestic demand that should be helpful."

George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank of New York, declared that "conditions are more favorable to stability and general prosperity than at any time in recent years."

GIFT TAX PROVISION OF REVENUE ACT HIT.
Chicago, September 29.—Hardships which may be encountered in the gift tax provisions of the federal revenue act were described today by James M. Dunn, Jr., Cleveland banker, in an address before the trust company division of the American Bankers' association.

A maximum tax of 40 per cent, he said, must be paid on gifts from one person aggregating $50,000 in a year. This, he declared, will work against charitable organizations, although charity is exempt under the law, because a man who would, for example, set his children up in business, will deduct the taxes which he would pay on that from his donations to charity.

Also, Mr. Dunn pointed out, if a man wanted to turn over his business to his sons, it becomes necessary to pay a considerable gift tax, and especially would this apply in the case of his death. Then it would be necessary, if the business had reached a capital investment of $1,000,000 or more, to sell a large portion of the stock of the corporation in order to obtain cash to pay the large estate tax due. The result might be that, after all the years of development, control could be lost to outside interests.

Might Tax 100 Per Cent.
The speaker explained that because of duplication of tax laws by the federal government and the various states, 100 per cent or more might have to be paid in taxes of one estate. After the conclusion of his address, the trust company division adopted a resolution setting forth that this duplication of estate, transfer and succession taxes "has become a well-known and tolerable."

The resolution asks that the president of the division appoint a committee to work with similar committees of other organizations in investigating the situation and suggesting a uniform method of taxation to be offered to the various states and the federal government for consideration and adoption.

Officers of the trust company division elected today are: Lucius Tetter, Chicago, president; Francis H. Sisson, New York, vice president, and the following as members of the executive committee: William R. Harvey, Los Angeles; Eliot C. McDougal, Buffalo; Walter P. Gardiner, Jersey City; W. J. Standeven, Tulsa, and Fred W. Ellsworth, New Orleans.

Urges Close Investigation.
In an address before the savings bank division of the association, Frank J. Parsons, New York, urged that prospective buyers investigate closely all mortgages or mortgage bonds offered for sale. He said many new companies had succeeded by "disregarding some of the principles which have always been considered essential to permanent safety," but advised that the older and more conservative brokers, who had skilled men in charge of their mortgage departments, were the ones with whom it was best to deal.

"Experience has demonstrated," he said, "that the best guarantee from loss, both from the standpoint of the lender and the investor, and incidentally the best interests of the borrower, is the character and experience of the issuing house, conservative appraisals, Angel Trail in the Grand Canyon.

a substantial equity in each individual property, careful supervision, and provision for continuous reductions of the loss."

Many savings banks, the speaker declared, were especially well qualified to carry a large share of the mortgage investments of the country.

have a good chance at the white house. Similarly, La Follette's tide is flowing in. He is arranging his western trip and will start out in about a week to do his level best to throw the republica vote in half and rip the election into congress. This is the way he hopes to beat Coolidge and Davis.

Many republicans are privately fearful La Follette is in danger of making good this objective. Daily they are coming to Coolidge, warning him that overconfidence is threatening the republic. They have an effort required. Their judgment is guardedly summed up in the statement of Colonel C. B. Blethen, Seattle publisher, and a shrewd and able campaigner for the Pacific coast politics, who called at the white house Monday.

Must Do Much Work.
If the election were held in Washington state tomorrow, we would win," Colonel Blethen said. "But there is radicalism there, the kind that is not for anybody in particular, but which would go to La Follette and do a victory. We have the antidote for that. Officer Dies After Struggle With Prisoner
Tullahoma, Tenn., September 29.—After a struggle with Virgil Peterson, a 20-year-old prisoner, whom he had handcuffed and was returning to the Tennessee Reformatory and Agricultural school at Nashville, Tenn., T. H. Matlock, 70, employee of the school, died here this afternoon. The young man was handcuffed also to Matlock's left arm.

Matlock was taking Peterson from Tracy City, Tenn., to Nashville. He accompanied the prisoner to a lavatory on the train. Passengers said, and after several minutes a scuffle and shouts for help were heard. Trainmen who broke into the room found the officer covering the boy with a pistol.

Dr. Arch Mitchell, of Tullahoma, who examined the body, said Matlock had been bitten twice on his left arm. He attributed death to exhaustion caused by the struggle.

The officer did not complain immediately after the struggle, but collapsed shortly after returning to his seat.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE AND DAUGHTER ON GOTHAM STUMP
New York, September 29.—A drive to capture the feminine votes of New York for Senator La Follette will open here Tuesday, with Mrs. La Follette and Fola La Follette, daughter of the senator, taking the lead in the appeal for husband and father.

Mrs. La Follette will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting Tuesday night. Fola La Follette and her husband, George Middleton, the playwright, will be the guests of a political luncheon, where Margaret Vale, niece of Woodrow Wilson, will preside, and Morris Hillquit, the socialist leader, will be the principal speaker.

Amos Pinchot, brother of the republican governor of Pennsylvania, announced Monday he would take the stump for La Follette and Wheeler in New Jersey.

GUARD WHO TOOK $90,000 OF BANK FUNDS SURRENDERS
Springfield, Mass., September 29.—William J. Hanifin, bank guard of the Union Trust company of this city, who disappeared Thursday with $90,000 of the bank's funds after he had obtained it at the postoffice, surrendered to the Springfield police this afternoon in Albany, N. Y., and was brought back to this city. He will be arraigned in court tomorrow morning, charged with larceny.

Officials of the bank and a bonding company of Boston, said that Hanifin told the police here that he had not spent any of the money he had taken. He said he had sent the money back to the company by express from Chicago Sunday night.

According to bank officials, Hanifin declared he had no motive in taking the money and blamed his act on the drinking of "moonshine" whiskey.

Bank officials announced, after Hanifin's release, that the money which the guard had sent back to the bank had been received tonight and that all except $390 of the original $90,000 was in the package. The mission money will be repaid by friends of Hanifin, it was declared.

BUCKHEAD PASTOR MAY RETURN HERE
Rev. W. J. P. Upshaw, who recently resigned as pastor of the Buckhead Baptist church, will leave this week for a two-month visit to his home in Tucson, Ariz. He and Mrs. Upshaw plan to return to Atlanta at the end of that period and Rev. Upshaw may resume his work in this city, he said.

He was presented with a large loving cup by members of his congregation after preaching his final sermon Sunday night. Rev. Upshaw has been pastor of the Buckhead church for the past four years and during that period the congregation was increased by two-thirds, it is stated.

DROP CONTEMPT CASE AGAINST SEN. CAMERON
Phoenix, Ariz., September 29.—Harold Baxter, special assistant attorney general of the United States, announced today he had been authorized to dismiss contempt proceedings pending against United States Senator Ralph Cameron, of Arizona, from the Arizona senate for alleged trespass of a Bright Angel Trail in the Grand Canyon.

SECRETARY HOOVER RAPS LA FOLLETTE

Washington, September 29.—Governor ownership of railroads and other public utilities, as advocated by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, would be a change "in our social, economic and political principles that will react to revolutionize our government itself," and would lead to a breakdown of democracy, Secretary of Commerce Hoover declared in a radio address here Monday night.

Hoover declared that to bear the load of adjustments which would be necessary for this step "the constitution would need to be rewritten in a score of places, until it was no longer our democracy."

Hoover mentioned La Follette by name, which has never been done by President Coolidge. He characterized government ownership as "a step backward," "the negation of progress," and declared that it would be "a financial transaction and a venture into business of a magnitude never before undertaken by any man or any government, democratic or otherwise—except in Russia."

Tear Down Democracy.
"America," he said, "has found the true road of advancement in these enterprises through sustained initiative and equality of opportunity to our people with public control to prevent abuse. Our salvation consists in following this line with increasing intelligence and devotion."

Basing his line of argument on the proposition that the change to government ownership would tear down the present democracy, Hoover traced carefully, calmly and without any bitterness the results of such a step. He argued:

1. That the present system of regulation of utilities by the government is adequate, it has increased the security of savings of the people, and resulted in "popular ownership" by investments of large numbers of people. Power companies in the country have over 700,000 stockholders. People of this country get the best service from their public utilities of any country in the world.

Death to State Regulation.
2. Neither the national nor state governments are planned or equipped for government ownership of utilities. While a few small nations have operated some public utilities, none have operated all, and there is "no temptation to imitation" in any of the attempts made. All these governments, moreover, have more centralized authority than American people will allow.

3. If utilities are operated by the federal government, it would do away with state regulation, and make the service "dependent" upon the will of Washington, thousands of miles away."

I. C. REVENUE SLUMPS; NET INCOME GROWS
Chicago, September 29.—The operating revenues of the Illinois Central system for August fell off $1,133,644.85, as compared with August of a year ago, according to the monthly report of the company issued tonight. The total for last month was $11,336,919.35, which, after deducting operating expenses, taxes and so forth, represented a net operating income of $2,450,109. This was an increase in net income of $827,189.96 over August, 1923.

The operating revenues for the first eight months of 1924, the report said, decreased $12,284,161.35, while the net income increased $2,052,232 when compared with the same period in 1923.

CAMPBELL BANK CASE CHANGED TO DEKALB

Fairburn, Ga., September 29.—(Special).—The trial of C. R. Harvey, former president of the defunct Bank of Campbell County, on six charges growing out of the failure of the bank, was carried over to the December term of the DeKalb county superior court on a change of venue after it became apparent that a jury could not be empaneled in Campbell county. Judge G. H. Howard, of Atlanta, sitting for Judge John B. Hutcheson, who was disqualified, ordered the change of venue.

Eleven indictments were returned against Harvey by the Campbell county grand jury, but only six of them were transferred in the order issued today. It is expected that the other indictments, together with indictments against directors and the cashier of the bank, will be transferred to some other court when cases are called at the February term of Campbell court. This seems probable for the same reason that the Harvey case was transferred today, court attachers said.

The inability to choose a jury was experienced because those having funds in the bank or those related to the defendant were disqualified from sitting. After several futile efforts, it was seen that one could not be drawn from the county list, and the change of venue was ordered.

Charges against the defendants range from embezzlement to receiving funds after the institution became insolvent.

Others indicted in connection with the failure of the bank are J. H. McClure, J. L. Brassell, H. W. Cook, J. A. Jones, M. R. Nixon, C. C. Smith, R. O. Tarter, directors, and H. W. Jones, cashier.

Call Communication.

POWER COMPANY COMPLETES MANY PLANT ADDITIONS

Improvement of the steam plants of the Georgia Railway and Power company, including an expenditure of $705,000 for new boilers, mechanical stokers and other equipment, has been completed and the new equipment will be placed in operation Wednesday, it was announced Monday by officials of the company.

Modernization of the steam plants, which also serve as emergency electric power stations, was part of the company's development program inaugurated early in the year, and involved the expenditure of more than $6,000,000 in Atlanta and elsewhere in Georgia, it is said.

The steam power plants now have a total generating capacity of approximately 25,000 horsepower as a result of the improvements, and is ample to supply the commercial demand for electricity in Atlanta, it is said, and serves as a perpetual guarantee against interruptions in service if the company's hydro-electric developments in north Georgia should be cut off by storms or other unpreventable causes.

80-YEAR-OLD FARMER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Frank Elport, 80-year-old retired farmer, of Flat Shoals road, beyond East Atlanta, who attempted suicide late Monday afternoon by slashing his throat with a rusty razor, is on the road to recovery at Grady hospital, after being transported to that institution in a record ambulance run shortly after the attempt. Attached at the hospital declared that there is practically no danger of complications and predicted that he will recover, even at his advanced age.

The razor barely missed the jugular vein, but severed his windpipe. The aged man, unable to speak, was apparently sullen of his failure to end his life. Relatives could attribute no motive for the act.

ALLEGED NARCOTIC 'RING' HEAD DENIED BAIL IN U. S. COURT

Harry Reeves, alleged drug addict and "dope" peddler, was brought before acting United States Commissioner Joe Abbott Monday on two separate charges of selling and possessing narcotics and was refused bail after he waived preliminary hearing.

Reeves appeared with a retinue of friends and henchmen, apparently determined to face trial. However, after consulting with his attorney, W. Paul Carpenter, he decided to waive commitment trial. Attorney Carpenter announced that this hearing would be waived and asked that bond be assessed.

Commissioner Abbott questioned some of the officers in an effort to learn whether Reeves was an old or new offender. He learned that the last arrest placed the number of cases pending against Reeves at 10. "Hold him without bond," he ordered.

"But, your honor," objected Attorney Carpenter, "this is a bailable case, and we ask that bail be assessed."

"Courts meet next Monday," replied Commissioner Abbott. "I will fix no bond for this man."

"Never heard of such a thing before," declared Attorney Carpenter. "You'll hear of it again if I remain here long," replied Commissioner Abbott.

Attorney Carpenter indicated that he would apply to Judge Sibley Tuesday in his efforts to have bond assessed for Reeves.

Reeves figured recently in the shooting and serious injury of F. M. Brown, of Bowman, Ga., an innocent bystander, who was shot during a scuffle between Reeves and officers.

Reeves' cases will be called up next Monday.

RAGSDALE QUILTS AS MAYOR PRO TEM. FOR NEW OFFICE

Inasmuch as Alderman J. N. Ragdale, of the Tenth ward, must resign as mayor pro tem, at the final October session of general council, in order to stand for election as county commissioner on November 4, the meeting of general council on Monday will be the last over which he will preside.

He was nominated in the county primary last March, and must resign as alderman in order to be named for county office at the general election, under the law. He will begin his term as a member of the county board on January 1 of next year.

Alderman J. L. Carpenter, oldest member of council in point of service, probably will be elected unanimously to fill Ragdale's unexpired term as mayor pro tem.

Both Aldermen W. B. Hartsfield of the Third ward, and Dr. W. R. Duval, of the First, have inaugurated intensive campaigns for the post in 1925, and as yet, are the only candidates announced.

Butts Cattlemen Sell Breeded Cows To Tift Farmers

Jackson, Ga., September 29.—(Special).—Farmers of Butts county have just completed the sale, through the assistance of County Agent H. G. Wiley, of a car of pure bred and grade dairy cows to a Tifton breeder. Part of another car, which was completed by Jasper county farmers, was sold to a breeder in Miami, Fla.

In addition to dairy cows several shipments of beef cattle have been made within the past few days. During the past three years dairymen and farmers of Butts county have bought three carloads of purebred and grade dairy cows, one car from Wisconsin, one from North Carolina and one car from Tennessee, and as a result the farms of the county are well stocked with pure-bred cattle. Good prices have been obtained for the cows sold.

In addition to the sales already made an auction sale is being planned for the fall. Jerseys and Guernseys are the leading breeds in Butts county.

CONTEST IS CLOSE FOR BEAUTY CROWN AT S. E. FAIR

With the beginning of the last week of preparation for the Southeastern Fair of 1924, which opens Saturday at Lakewood park, an increase of intensity in the contest to select "Miss Atlanta Fair" was reported Monday by the fair association officials.

Once more the leadership veered, as it has been veering every day for the last two weeks. Miss Maddalena Hauff, who has been running in the first five, forged ahead of the bunch Monday, but not so far ahead of Miss Connie Collette, who was second, and Miss Freddie Muller, who was third, to make her lead decisive.

And not far behind these three were bunched the 150 others who, the officials said, were every one possible winners.

SINGERS WILL MEET AT CENTRAL CHURCH

The annual interstate convention of Sacred Harp singers will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Central Baptist church.

This singing society was organized by Major B. F. White, in Pike county, in the year 1844, and has continued as an organization since that time.

There will be singing classes from many counties surrounding Fulton, according to reports of officials in charge, as well as strong delegations of individual and class singers from the states of Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana.

The public is invited to attend and basket dinner will be served on the church grounds each day.

JACKSON HIGH SCHOOL TO SERVE BUTTS COUNTY

Jackson, Ga., September 29.—(Special).—The Jackson High school has been designated as the senior high school of Butts county, the application of the county board of education having been favorably acted on by the state department of education.

In the future all members of the junior and senior classes, living outside of Jackson, will be admitted to the Jackson High school without a tuition charge, and the money already paid in tuition fees this fall will be refunded, when the state appropriation is available. This will be probably the first of the new year. There are one or two other schools in the county doing junior high school work.

Lectures start at 8:15 and there is no admission charge. They are given under the auspices of the Atlanta Theosophical society.

Ticket Sale Opening For Artists' Concert Brings Heavy Demand

The sale of season tickets for the artists' series of concerts, to be presented by the Southern Musical bureau, opened at 9 o'clock Monday morning at the store of Phillips & Crew, and a heavy demand is reported by Russell Bridges, head of the bureau.

Five attractions are included in the list, all of them offering a wide appeal and presenting notables in the musical world. The series is to be opened by Vladimir de Pachmann, the Russian pianist, on November 14. The San Carlo Opera company is to present "Madame Butterfly" on New Year's eve, and Paul Whiteman, at the head of his own orchestra, will play on January 15. Ruth St. Denis and the Denishawn Dancers, on January 29, and Mischel Elman, the violinist, on March 3, complete the series.

Reservations by out-of-town patrons indicate a wide interest in the artists' series. Hundreds of music students from Georgia colleges have asked for seats for de Pachmann, the "Madame Butterfly" performance and Mischel Elman, while season reservations have been made by individuals for a hundred miles around Atlanta. No local reservations were made in advance of the sale, but Mr. Bridges announces that requests by telephone will be honored this week. The season tickets will be withdrawn after next Saturday, and tickets for each concert will be sold a few days before its date. All the attractions will be presented at the Auditorium.

SEMINARY STUDENTS HEAR MYSTIC'S WIFE

Mrs. Jinarajadasa, wife of the famous Indian publicist and mystic who lectured at the Ansley hotel Monday night and who will lecture again tonight, will address the students of Washington seminary at 10 o'clock this morning. Her subject will be "The Awakening of India's Women."

HORSE SHOW ENTRIES CREATING INTEREST

Interest is developing rapidly in the horse show to be held during the Southeastern fair next week and many important entries already have been made, some of them from out of town, according to fair officials.

The show committee, composed of Mrs. Tracy E. Hill, Holland E. Judkins, Major Colley, Frank Adair and Asa J. Patterson, Jr., chairman, announces that all judging will be in front of the grandstand at 3:30 each afternoon of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Stall room will be provided in the horse show barn in the park, a competent man to be in charge night and day, and no entrance fee will be charged to exhibit. All entries should be sent to the chairman, Asa J. Patterson, Jr., National stock yards, Atlanta, Ga.

On Monday the first class will be saddle ponies under 48 inches, ridden by boy or girl under 12 years of age. Tuesday, October 7, the first class will be plantation walking horses, judged on conformation, running walk and canter, conformation 40 per cent, and gait 60.

On Wednesday the first class will be five-gaited saddle horses, judged on walk, running walk or stepping pace, rack, trot and canter. Thursday, three-gaited saddle horses, walk, trot and canter. Friday, polo ponies, to be judged on conformation, speed and manners.

PERIN TO ANSWER SLAYING CHARGE

Cincinnati, Ohio, September 29.—Rainscock and disheveled, with his clothes bearing the marks of 60 hours out-of-doors, Vinton Perin, 50, surrendered himself today to answer for the slaying of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frances D. Rawson, 77, and for the shooting of his sister-in-law, Miss Nina Rawson.

Alternately sobbing, jesting and pacing the floor of detective headquarters, Perin told the police that after fleeing from the Rawson household Friday night bearing the smoking revolver in his hand, he walked and walked.

When he reached Walton, Ky., 35 miles away, he turned back.

At 7 o'clock this morning Safety Director Charles E. Tudor received a telephone call from Perin. Perin said that if Tudor would come out he would surrender himself at Walnut Hills.

Tells of Persecution.

Tudor communicated at once with Chief of Detectives Emmett Kirgen, who reached the scene at the same time as the safety director. Perin stood on the corner and after he had talked a moment to Tudor, said he wanted to surrender.

Perin told a story of 20 years of alleged persecution by his mother-in-law. She opposed his marriage to her daughter, Deborah, he said, and since the wedding did everything she could to eliminate him.

Perin readily admitted the shooting, but showed an aversion to talk of the actual killing.

"Our argument which preceded the shooting was about Nina Rawson's building an apartment house and turning it over to my wife to operate and take in university men as boarders," Perin said. "I objected to this, saying it would demean my wife, whose standing was above such work. Then they jumped all over me, and it all started."

Had Poison Tablets.

A search of Perin's pockets revealed that he had four poison tablets and only $2.57.

"After the shooting, it was terrible. I couldn't think. I was trying to get my mind together. I could have committed suicide if I wanted to. I had poison with me. But I had still enough sense not to try that."

A formal charge of murder was lodged against Perin last Saturday. Although still in a serious condition, Miss Nina Rawson was recovering today from three wounds inflicted by Perin.

The funeral of Mrs. Rawson was set for today.

ATLANTA THUGS LOSE LITTLE TIME, CHICAGOAN FINDS

Just 30 minutes after his arrival in Atlanta, Sam Greenberg, 29, of Chicago, Ill., was doped, slugged and robbed, he reports.

According to police records Greenberg was found lying in a puddle of water, on Washington Terrace about 7 o'clock Monday night by pedestrians who sent him to Grady hospital.

After regaining consciousness Greenberg told Grady authorities that he was doped by the driver of an automobile which he engaged to drive him about the city. His assailant escaped with his suitcase, a watch and other valuables, in addition to $138 in cash, according to Greenberg.

Unconscious, Greenberg was disrobed and placed on an operating table in the emergency clinic at Grady. While physicians sought to bring him to consciousness he suddenly revived and jumping from the table, dashed into the street. Reaching the sidewalk he fainted, lapsing again into unconsciousness. Reaching his side Grady attendants attempted to bring him back into the building, but Greenberg once more revived and fought them desperately. He was subdued and returned to the clinic, where treatment was administered.

Greenberg told physicians that he had taken two drinks of whisky with the driver of the car. Examination of the contents of his stomach revealed that a form of "dope" had been given him, which caused unconsciousness. Bruises about the head showed that he had been struck with some heavy object.

Greenberg furnished police with a description of the car and its driver, and arrests are expected.

Greenberg told police that he arrived in Atlanta at 5:10 o'clock Monday afternoon from Chicago, and that he engaged the car in front of the Terminal station. Riding on Washington street, the driver proffered him a drink, which he took. He was overcome with a drowsy feeling, he said, and soon became unconscious.

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN QUILTS GOVERNMENT JOB

Washington, September 29.—Thomas W. Miller tendered his resignation to President Coolidge today as alien property custodian.

The president in indicating he would accept the resignation asked Mr. Miller to continue in his office for the time being.

Mr. Miller said he was forced to resign because the duties of the office to which he was recently elected, president of the Inter-Allied World War Veterans' association, would demand his presence abroad during most of the next year. He was appointed to office by President Harding in March, 1921.

Besides his work as custodian, Mr. Miller has been active in the study of soldier rehabilitation questions, and is a member of the American battle monuments commission. He was a member of the house from Delaware in the 64th congress.

9,962 BALES RECEIVED ON AMERICUS MARKET

Americus, Ga., September 29.—Total cotton receipts in Americus to date are 9,962 bales, with total ginnings to September 15 within the county reported as 9,260 bales by W. I. Persons, resident agent of the census bureau. Little cotton, now being brought into Americus, because of continued wet weather, which not only has interfered with picking operations, but has resulted in material deterioration in the quality of the staple.

The above figures indicate that Sumter county farmers have already this year marketed at least a portion of their cotton brought over from last season, warehousemen say.

DOAK WILL OPPOSE GLASS IN VIRGINIA

Washington, September 29.—W. N. Doak, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced today his acceptance of the republican nomination to oppose Senator Carter Glass as candidate for the senate in Virginia. Mr. Doak is from Booneville and is national legislative representative of his brotherhood.

Fight in Offing On Plan To Amend Charter of City

With preparations being made for an organized fight against the carrying into effect of an amendment to the city charter which, if approved by a referendum of the people, would change the method of election of members of the board of education, it could not be learned Monday when council will take up the matter of setting a date for the referendum.

Under the present election of members of the board of education, the Third ward, author of the bill in council, was non-committal Monday.

Mayor Sims also refused to state his views on the matter and although there is a possibility that the referendum will be set at the same time as the general city election on December 2, there is a well-defined feeling that council will take no action in the immediate future.

The referendum can be set by council for either a regular or special election.

John T. Hancock, president of the board of education, stated that while he plans to take no active part in the campaign against the referendum, he will be present to elect members of the board.

Under the present system which has been in effect since 1922, one member of the board is elected from each ward in the city. For practically four years in the past, no one member was elected from each of the five school districts.

As provided by the charter amendment passed this year, board members will be elected by council, the mayor and chairman of the school committee of council acting as ex-officio members. Council also will have supervisory powers over the board, and the system will be practically the same as the one used for many years prior to 1919. The present law requires council to turn not less than 25 per cent of the total revenue over to the board.

Terms of present members of the board do not expire until January 1, 1926, and regardless of the result of a referendum they will serve their full terms.

SIGMA NU CHAPTER TENDERS BANQUET TO NEW PLEDGES

The Sigma Nu chapter of Emory university Monday night honored its pledges at an elaborate banquet held in the Capital City club.

In addition to the 18 men pledged by the chapter this term, a number of guests and members of the active chapter were present. It is the custom of the chapter to tender a banquet in honor of new pledges each year, and the event Monday night was declared to be the most successful in the history of the Emory chapter.

Bond Almond, of the alumni, acted as toastmaster and delivered the principal address. Other speakers were R. L. Fagan, E. M. Kendrick, Percy McGhee, Percy Slater, William Kemp and Clifford Hendrick. A number of other impromptu speeches were made by members of the assembly.

Following addresses a delightful program of music was rendered. Neely Pencock, a member of the active chapter, was heard in a number of songs, while two pledges, Arnes and Martin, rendered piano solos.

Those attending the banquet as guests were Russell Bridges, Bond Almond, Percy McGhee, Nesbit Marye and E. M. Kendrick. Active chapter members present were Joe Almond, Ray Whittle, Zeke Goswick, Ray Griffin, William Snipes, Hudson Johnson, Milan Reeves, Neely Pencock, R. L. Fagan, Howell Sewell, J. H. House and William T. Booth. The pledges were Ballard, Hodges, Allen, Overly, Knight, Christ, Hightower, Haddock, Kendrick, Martin, Kemp, Sutton, Hendricks, Johnson, Finger, Arnes, Slater and Fears.

MEMPHIS ADDRESS OF DAWES IS CANCELLED

Chicago, September 29.—The scheduled address of General Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential candidate, at Memphis, Tenn., Thursday night, has been cancelled, it was announced today, although it was said he might go to Memphis later.

At republican headquarters it was said that the understanding here is that the address in Memphis has not been completed.

Reported inability of republican leaders in Tennessee to agree on arrangements for the Memphis meeting also was understood to have been a factor in the decision to cancel the engagement.

In two counties of Florida more than 5,000 signboards have been removed, to allow the natural beauty of road-travel to be apparent.

TROPICAL STORM PASSES INLAND

Washington, September 29.—The tropical disturbance has passed inland between Cedar Keys and Apalachicola, Fla., the United States weather bureau said here at 10 o'clock tonight in announcing that advisory storm and hurricane warnings are down from Burwood, La., to Key West.

Storm warnings remain displayed, however, off the Atlantic coast, from Jacksonville, Fla., to Fort Monroe, Va., and from Delaware Breakwater to Nantucket.

PENSACOLA VESSELS IN PORT MADE FAST

Pensacola, Fla., September 29.—Storm signals were displayed here today and shipping was warned of the presence of a disturbance in the gulf, the intensity of which the weather bureau was unable tonight to determine. All vessels in port were secured tonight against the expected heavy northwest winds during the night. The local weather observer had been keeping in touch by radio with the presence of the gulf storm ever since it was reported last week.

TROPICAL STORM WILL MISS TAMPA

Tampa, Fla., September 29.—Indications at the weather bureau here late this afternoon were that the tropical storm, which this morning caused the posting of warnings throughout the gulf coast section, would pass to the north of Tampa. The peak of the disturbance was expected sometime tonight.

Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon the barometer had dropped to 29.75 and was falling slowly. A southern wind was blowing at a velocity of 18 miles an hour.

The forecast for this vicinity is for strong southeast by south winds and high tides. Continued flurries of heavy rain and unusually high tides were reported in nearby waters. Hillsborough river overflowed its banks and flooded some low places, but no serious damage was reported.

SEVENTH KLAN DEATH REPORTED IN HERRIN

London, September 29.—Sir Alfred Bower was today elected lord mayor of London for the ensuing year.

URGE RAIL MAIL SERVICE RESTORED ON LINE TO LULA

Washington, September 29.—Senators Harris and George and Representative Bell and Brand of Georgia, have urged the postoffice department to restore the railway mail service on the branch of the Southern railroad from Lula to Athens.

This service was discontinued during the war on account of conditions, and there was no complaint at that time. But lack of the service is now causing considerable inconvenience, and numerous complaints have come from points all along the line asking that it be reinstated. The Georgia senators and congressmen are hopeful that the postoffice department will comply with their appeal.

STEPHENS' LEFT FOOT REMOVED IN MEMPHIS

Memphis, Tenn., September 29.—United States Senator Hubert D. Stephens, of Mississippi, underwent an operation in a Memphis hospital today for removal of his left foot in which blood poisoning developed when he accidentally struck it with an axe on his farm near New Albany, Miss., last week. He was reported by the attending surgeons as having withstood the operation well and that his general condition was very good.

By taking aboard 274,500 bushels of wheat in 6 1/4 hours at Montreal, the steamship Innerston, it is believed, created a new world's record for rapid loading.

Armstrong's Linoleum for Every Floor in the House

An Interior Decorator Chose This Linoleum Floor for Her Own Dining Room

THIS sketch was made from a photograph of the dining-room of a prominent New York interior decorator.

She chose this black and cream inlaid tile pattern of Armstrong's Linoleum for her home because the linoleum was pretty.

Like thousands of other women who buy linoleum every day, this decorator knew that a linoleum floor was economical; she knew that it was easy to clean; she knew that it was durable.

Most women know all these things about linoleum floors. They are discovering an even more interesting thing—that a floor of modern linoleum is beautiful.

Architects are showing them that this is so. Decorators are demonstrating it again and again. Merchants are proving it.

Linoleum looks its best underfoot—as a floor

A roll of linoleum standing in a store does not always give a clear idea of how that same linoleum will look on the floor of your home.

But when one of the modern designs of Armstrong's Linoleum has been chosen for a definite room in your house—when a trained linoleum layer has cemented that linoleum floor in place—smooth, watertight, and unbroken by unsightly seams—when that linoleum floor has been thoroughly waxed, the furniture replaced, perhaps a fabric rug laid upon it—

Then you do see that it is indeed a beautiful floor.

The modern way to lay linoleum

When a floor of linoleum is to be laid, the better stores will recommend "cementing over felt." This means that a lining of builders' deadening felt is first pasted to the bare wood floor. The linoleum is then pasted to this felt and extended beneath the moulding around the walls. When the wood floor expands or contracts in changing weather, the felt lining prevents this from affecting the linoleum. In winter the room is warmer.

Waxing and polishing

The easy way to keep a linoleum floor good-looking is to wax it. Rub the wax in thoroughly and polish with a weighted brush. Rewax once or twice a year, and on cleaning day, restore the walked-on places with a cloth moistened in liquid wax. Scrubbing linoleum is unnecessary. Strong soaps or scouring powders are harmful. Waxing is the right way.

Write our Bureau of Interior Decoration

This Bureau, in charge of Mrs. Hazel Dell Brown, an experienced decorator, will help you to plan color schemes for new homes or particular rooms. Mrs. Brown will send you suggestions of linoleum designs, and tell you how to take care of your linoleum floors. We will send you a sample of Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum, a 24-page booklet, "New Floors for Old," and direct you to good stores near you that do good laying, and can supply Armstrong's Linoleum in the new decorative designs. ## NATION'S TRIBUTE PAID TO IMBRIE

Washington, September 29.—Respects of the nation were paid today to Robert Imbrie, the American vice-consul who was killed by a fanatic mob at Teheran, Persia, last July, at funeral services attended by President Coolidge and high officials of the American and Persian governments.

The body was buried with simple rites in Arlington National cemetery in the presence of his widow, Mrs. Katherine Gillespie Imbrie, a few intimate relatives of the family, the president and other government representatives.

At funeral services in the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the Reverend Wallace Radcliffe, pastor, officiated, prayed for the speed of brotherhood into the promotion of peace and good fellowship in international relations. The Reverend Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor, consoled the family in a short sermon.

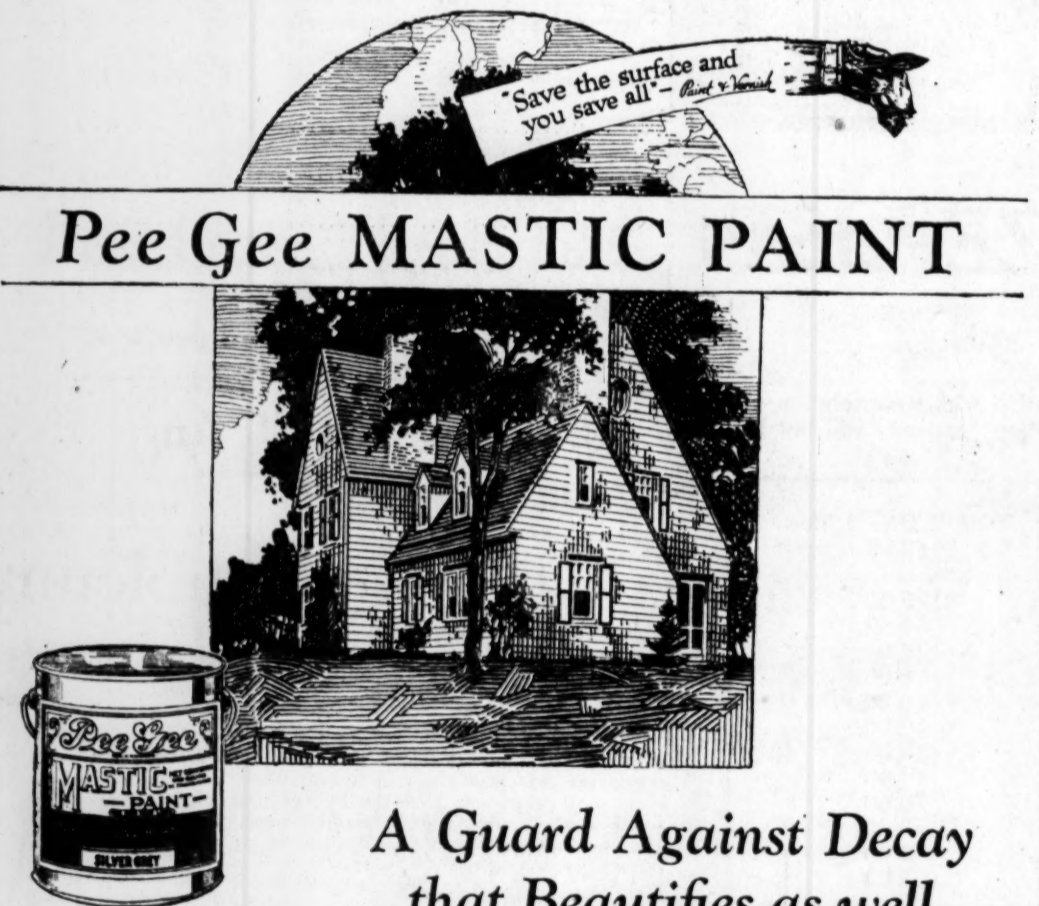

The president was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary and Mrs. Hughes were present, with other state department and government officials, and accompanied the body to the cemetery.

WHEELER ASSAILS G. O. P. CANDIDATE

Denver, September 29.—Besides taking steps to straighten out electoral tangles in Colorado, Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, made three speeches today in Denver. In the principal one, delivered tonight at a downtown auditorium, he gave an endorsement to Senator Adams, democrat, who is contesting the Colorado seat now held by Senator Phipps, republican, and assailed Senator Phipps' legislative record.

Identical La Follette-Wheeler electors will be named by three different groups in Colorado. Senator Wheeler announced after his conference with leaders of divisions supporting that ticket. The compromise, which he said was satisfactory to local elements and the national management, will give the same electors party classifications as socialist, farmer-labor and progressive.

Senator Phipps, he said, by his every speech and vote has shown that he considers himself the representative of his own private business and the "agent of the Pennsylvania steel mills and the steel trust in the senate."

Citing Senator Phipps' vote to retain Senator Newberry, republican, of Michigan, in the senate, the candidate predicted his defeat, because of those who he voted, "only two have escaped with their political lives."

"This will be heard on Mr. Phipps," he proceeded. "In his absence I do not know who in the senate will look after his private interests. Mr. Phipps confessed that he had voted to kill a government power project in Yuma county because it would reduce the profits of a company in which he is a stockholder."

"You have sent another senator to Washington who is not betraying your interests, for his service is helping unearthen the fraud upon the people represented by the Teapot Dome steal. He should have the everlasting gratitude of his own state. I believe you will see that Alva Adams remains in the senate."

"Two Denver publishers had so much inside information concerning the Teapot Dome steal that you must have been kept fully informed. Since one of them received $250,000 for his information and an other received $60,000 for what he knew, they must have kept their readers advised of that particular episode."

Reapportionment of bond funds, addition of buildings and grounds of Atlanta schools, and means of raising funds to pay vouchers due on the new Girls' High school building, now under construction, will be considered today at a special meeting of the board of education and the bond commission, called by President John T. Hancock.

Reapportionment of the finance sheet was approved at last week's meeting of the purchasing committee of the school board, and it is expected that both the bond commission and the board of education will approve it without many changes. Mr. Hancock stated Monday that $49,000 has been saved in money appropriated for building of several schools under the $4,000,000 bond issue, and that practically the entire amount will be used on the Girls' High school building.

Transfer of the $49,000 to the girls' High school will mean a saving of that amount in the operating fund. Under the law, bond funds can be used only for building, and the transfer will permit of paying the vouchers immediately and the use of current revenues in other schools. If approved by the board and bond commission, the reapportionment sheet probably will be presented for approval of general council at next Monday's session.

Condition of school buildings and grounds also will be taken up today. Rains of the past two weeks, it is stated, have left the grounds of many schools in miserable condition and repairs must be undertaken at once. Construction of covered passageways already has been started between junior and senior high schools and portable buildings. This work will be completed this week, it is said.

SENATOR STEPHENS IS RESTING EASILY

Memphis, Tenn., September 29.—Hospital attendants, describing the condition tonight of Senator H. D. Stephens, of Mississippi, who submitted to amputation of his left foot today, said the patient was "doing well as could be expected." He was sleeping soundly early tonight, the report said.

The senator's foot was amputated to stop the spread of blood poisoning which resulted from a wound inflicted more than two weeks ago when Mr. Stephens cut his foot on an axe while chopping a branch from a tree on his farm near New Albany, Miss.

Mill Schedules Increased.
Springfield, Mass., September 29.—The West Boylston company cotton mills of East Hampton resumed full time in several departments after a long period of curtailment. The American Thread company, of Holyoke, which has been operating four days a week, has increased its schedule to five days.

Denies Dancer's Motion.
San Francisco, September 29.—Federal Judge J. S. Partridge today denied a motion by a plaintiff to dismiss the $1,000,000 breach of promise action entered against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, young New York and San Francisco capitalist, by Evan Burrows Fontaine, a dancer.

Chilean Delegation Here For Pan-American Meeting

With the delegation representing the republic of Chile already in the city, and arrival of delegates from other Latin-American nations expected today, everything is in readiness for opening Wednesday of the Pan-American commercial congress.

Cables received from Cuba Monday stated that the delegation from that republic, consisting not only of government representatives, but also of delegates from practically every nation-wide commercial and industrial organization in that country, will arrive today. Groups from other countries, already in the United States, and delegations commissioned by the respective governors of several states, also are expected to register here during the day.

The big event of Wednesday will be the formal banquet on the roof carport of the Ansley hotel. Arrangements are being made to entertain between 600 and 800 guests.

Delegates and diplomats in attendance from all foreign nations accredited to the United States will be honor guests at the meeting. Responses to toasts will be made by representatives of every foreign nation.

Plans for the transportation division of the congress were completed Monday, it was stated by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, president of the southern commercial congress. Milton Smith, Jr., of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, will be one of the principal speakers in the railway section of the division.

J. A. Roundtree, of Birmingham, director-general of the United States good roads division, and Colonel Benjamin Cameron, president of the Bank-Highway association, both will address the highways association, while word has been received that T. V. O'Connor, president of the United States shipping board; E. C. Plummer, vice chairman of that body, and Captain F. T. Chambers, expert of the board's staff, will participate in discussions of the waterways section. Captain Chambers will speak on facilities of South Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico ports.

Addresses in the engineering program dealing with public service utilities in Latin-American countries will be delivered by C. H. Bishon, utilities engineer of Charlotte, N. C., and Phineas V. Stephens, of New York City, president of the American Industries Engineering corporation.

Among officials named in advisory and consulting capacities in the study of specific problems of South American nations is William A. Reid, foreign trade adviser of the Pan-American union. He, with a number of other officials, will give information both at open forum meetings and private conferences to all interested in Latin-American commercial projects.

Inauguration of the new drill and training schedule for the 1224 infantry, "Atlanta's own" national guard regiment, featured the regular drill period Monday night. The new schedule includes an intensive program, and is for a period of six months.

The regiment's band, directed by John Scharf, was functioning in top form Monday night, the several companies doing "squads east and squads west" to the strains of favorite regimental airs.

Rigid adherence to the training program for the next six months was the keynote of a brief talk at the officers' meeting by Colonel Charles H. Cox, commanding officer. A record will be kept of progress and reports submitted at intervals by company commanders.

Captain D. C. Harris, commanding officer of Company C, 121st infantry, better known as "Floyd Rifles," of Macon, was present during the drill period and spoke highly of the new Georgia national guard regiment. Colonel Cox urged officers to attend the regular weekly meeting luncheon Wednesday at the Ansley hotel. A musical program featuring Mlle. Madeline Hauff, "nightingale of the south," has been arranged, Colonel Cox stated.

The Problem:

What Is the Sum Total of the Figures Forming the Elephant?

Include the figures in the ground-work under the Elephant.

Simp'y Add Them Up to Get the Solution

There are no marks, lines or characters in the elephant except figures. These figures range from 2 to 9, each standing alone. There are no "ones" or "ciphers." There are no groups of figures such as "23" or "42." The heads of the "6's" are distinctly curved while the tails of the "9's" are straight, or practically so. There is no trick or illusion of any description in the chart.

General Rules of The Contest

1. All bona fide residents of Georgia and adjoining states, meaning Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina and Tennessee, may take part in this contest, except employees of The Atlanta Constitution and members of their families.

2. Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire, provided payment of one of the three amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution. NO SOLUTION NOT ACCOMPANIED BY A SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENT WILL BE REGISTERED.

3. Only one prize will be paid to any person, household, or group of persons working together. When, in the judgment of the contest manager, two or more solutions have been copied or worked in collusion, such solutions may be rejected by him and the subscription money refunded.

4. The Atlanta Constitution is to decide any questions which may arise that are not covered by the published rules, and those entering this contest agree to abide by such decisions and accept them as final and conclusive.

5. All solutions must be mailed or delivered to The Atlanta Constitution office on or before 9 o'clock, Saturday, November 8th, 1924. Solutions sent by mail bearing postmark of that date will be accepted, if rules governing same are complied with. This contest extends from Sunday, September 28th, to and including Saturday, November 8th, 1924.

6. In case of ties, as many prizes will be reserved as there are people tied before any prizes are awarded for less correct solutions, and another puzzle will be submitted to those tied. That is, if two or more people should tie on the best solution, the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them, and they will be awarded in the order of the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle. If ties still result, as many as four tie-breaking puzzles will be used, after which should ties still result each contestant will receive the full value of the prize tied for.

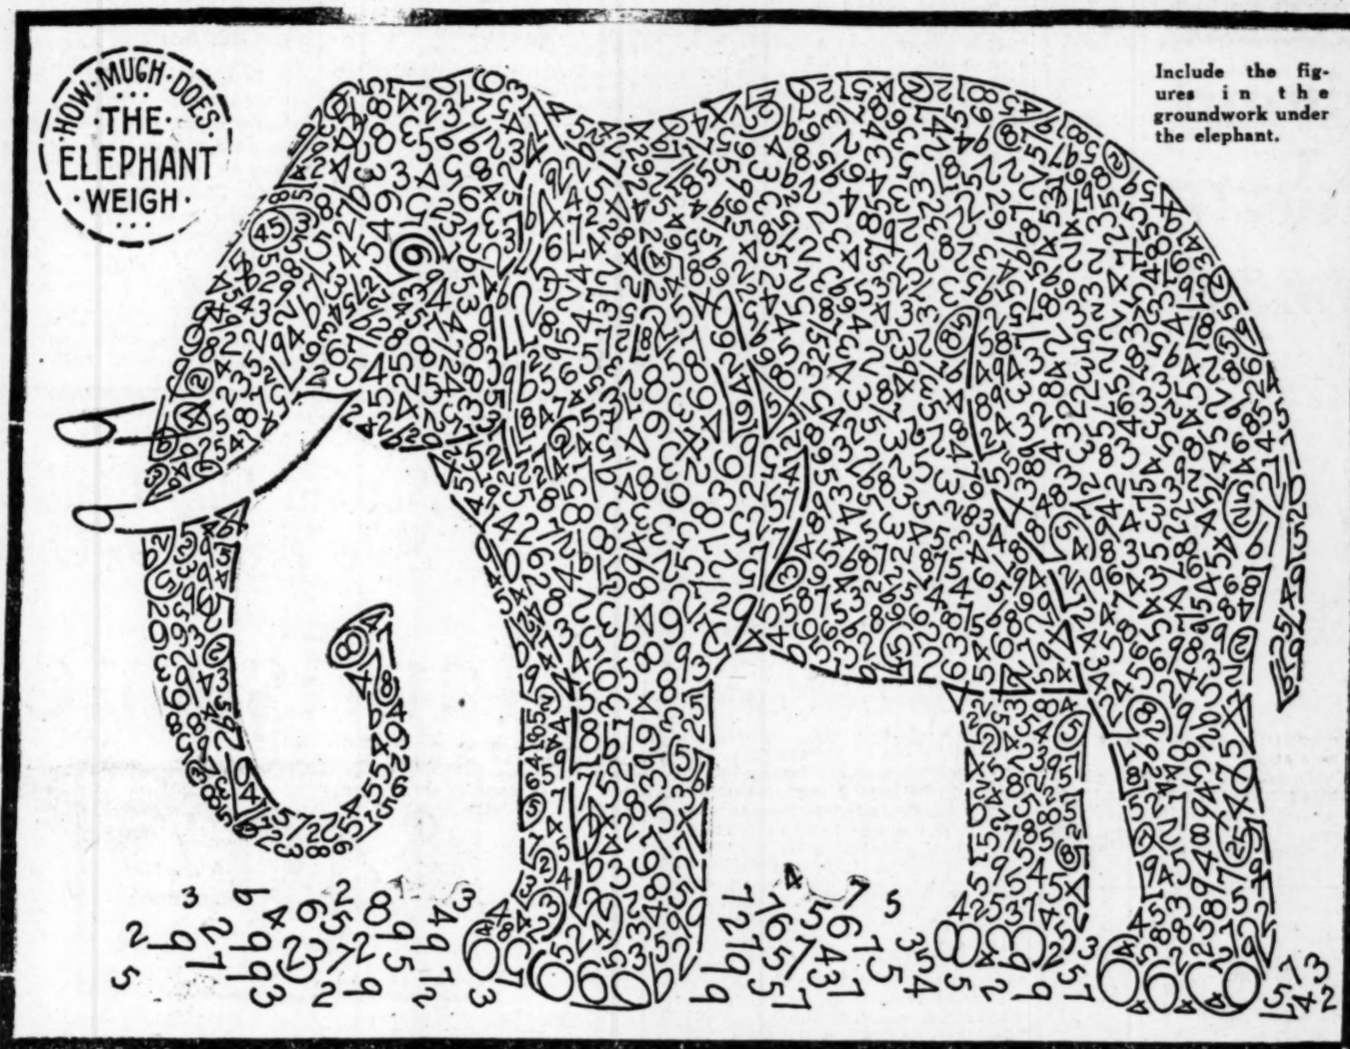

7. This contest is open to both new and old subscribers alike. The regular subscription rates of $2.50 for three months, $5.00 for six months, $9.50 for twelve months to the daily and Sunday Constitution will prevail. Daily only subscriptions not accepted in this contest. Full amount of subscription must be remitted in every instance. When sent through an agent no commission can be deducted.

8. A person who is now taking the daily and Sunday Constitution, and paying a carrier or agent by the week or month, may send or bring direct to The Constitution a three, six or twelve months' payment with the solution. Whatever is due such carrier, dealer or agent, must be paid to him, as the remittance sent us will date from the day it is received. The carrier or agent will be notified by The Constitution of such advance payment. Renewals on mail subscriptions will be extended for the length of time paid for from present paid date of expiration.

EXTRA!

Name the Elephant and Win an Extra Prize

The Constitution wants two good and appropriate names for its pachyderm. It therefore offers two extra prizes for these names, which may be submitted whether or not those submitting them send a solution on the weight of the elephant or not. NO SUBSCRIPTION HAS TO BE PAID BY THOSE SUBMITTING NAMES. This offer open and free to everybody.

FIRST PRIZE, for the best name ..... $50
SECOND PRIZE, for the next best name ..... $25

Each name may consist of from one to three words, but no one may submit more than one name, or use more than three words in any name he or she submits. No name may be submitted later than October 30. The best names will be determined by judges whom The Constitution will select to decide the question.

In case two people submit the same name, and it is selected as one that wins a prize, each of those submitting that name will receive the full value of that respective prize. Now, here's a chance to exercise your wits in selecting an appropriate name for The Constitution's Elephant. Just write it down plainly with your name and address included and send it in for consideration.

Elephant Name Coupon

TO THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION:

I submit as an appropriate name for your Elephant the following:

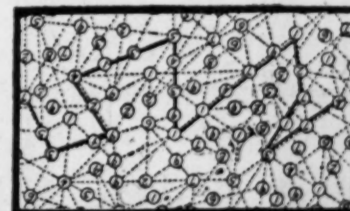

Name .....

Address .....

NOTE: While the contest for solving the elephant's weight does not close until November 8, the last date on which you may submit a name is October 30.

Names may be submitted on a slip of paper or on this coupon.

Deciding Ties—If Any

Actual Size, 11x7 Inches

In case of ties those tied for any prize will be presented with a second puzzle, which will consist of drawing a line across the face of a chart of figures, like the accompanying chart, only larger, so that the figures thus connected when added together will total the greatest sum. If necessary this chart will be used four times, after which, should any ties remain, each contestant will receive full value of any prize tied for.

In case there are no ties on counting the Elephant no other puzzle, of course, will be presented.

Closing Date

The Great Elephant Puzzle Contest Will Close at Nine P. M. Saturday, November 8th, 1924.

The earlier you send in your solution the longer time you will have to go over your figures, AND SEND IN ANOTHER SOLUTION, if you find you can do better. Additional charts may be secured at any time by calling at the address below or sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope for mailing them. NO SOLUTION CAN BE CHANGED AFTER IT HAS BEEN ONCE REGISTERED.

Important Facts To Remember

While the amount you pay with a solution of the puzzle does not have any effect on your winning a prize, it does affect the amount you will receive, should you win one of the first nine prizes, as the value of these prizes is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the prize list, which you should study carefully before sending in your solution. The time a solution is received has no bearing upon its winning a prize. Accuracy is what counts. Not more than one prize will be awarded to any one person.

Constitution's Elephant Race Begins First Lap

Two thousand, five hundred and ten dollars in cash prizes, ranging downward from $1,000—that's the reward that lies at the end of the elephant race inaugurated this week by The Constitution.

If you haven't met the famous Constitution elephant, don't fail to look him up. You'll find him in a full-page advertisement appearing in this issue of The Constitution, and a more interesting beast you never saw. His composed entirely of figures ranging from 2 to 9 so put together that they make the figure of an elephant. The problem is to add up all the figures and thus arrive at the weight of the elephant.

There's no trick involved; nothing more difficult or complicated than a simple process of addition. You're at liberty to "add 'em up" in any way you choose, employing any method that may strike your sense of ingenuity as best.

To the man, woman or child who turns in the nearest correct estimate of the "weight" of the elephant will go first prize—a cool $1,000 in cash. That's handsome enough to attract every one, and it's a pretty safe bet to say that many families, from baby on up to dad and mother, will combine efforts and strive for the correct weight of the mathematical pachyderm.

In addition to the first prize of $1,000, there's a second prize of $700; a third of $400; a fourth of $200, and 26 additional prizes which will carry a total of award money to $2,510.

No winner, fairer or easier method of winning a handsome cash prize has ever been offered, and in addition to this feature one recognizes at once the fun to be derived these long fall nights from working on the weight of the elephant.

Look up the elephant in this edition; read all the particulars, and get in line at once to win a big prize.

CITIZENS DEMAND BUTLER RETENTION

Philadelphia, September 29.—Inability of Brigadier General Snedley D. Butler, director of public safety, to go to his office today, due to retarded convalescence from a severe cold, resulted in a postponement of the delivery to him of Major Kendrick's "communication," said to contain a request for the director's resignation.

The mayor stated that the document would be laid on the director's desk only when he is able to go to city hall, probably Wednesday.

Citizens favoring retention of Director Butler held a meeting tonight in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Law Enforcement League. Applications for tickets far exceeded the seating capacity of the house, about 4,000.

Resolutions adopted at the mass-meeting stated that since General Butler has been in command here, "more has been accomplished for the suppression of vice and crime than in any period of like duration in this city."

Continuing, the resolution said: "By his quick initiative, his untiring zeal, his readiness to sacrifice personal interests for the good of the service, General Butler has won the confidence of all good citizens and has inspired a wholesome fear in the breasts of all violators of the law."

Dancing Is Art In Kansas, Says School Decision

Emporia, Kansas, September 29.—Dancing is an art, and likewise healthful.

This decision, concurred in by even the most pious members of the state board of education, has put an end to a controversy that was waged here for more than two years.

Pavlova, famous dancer, sets the blame for touching off the argument and the credit for finally forcing a decision on that much-discussed question in the summer state of "what is dancing and why?"

Two years ago, Pavlova and her Russian ballet dancers came to the Emporia teachers' college. Some said it was an artistic performance while others insisted that the troupe were long on art and short on clothes.

In the heat of the discussion that followed, Mrs. Laura French, club woman, denounced the exhibition in a letter to an Emporia newspaper, saying:

"Legs to legs and Pavlova should cover 'em up."

After that every school dance here raised a storm of protest and the state board of education decided to investigate. Its members saw the folk dancing in the schools, attended one or two social dances, and upon returning to Topeka issued an order sanctioning dancing in all of the state's schools.

USE OF PROFANITY CONVINCES POLICE OF GIRL'S DESIRE

Mary Smith, 19 years of age, and very pretty, languishes in a cell at police station.

That's where she wants to be. It happened like this—

About 11 o'clock Monday night she walked into police station and insisted that she be locked up. Because she was pretty, well-dressed, and had done nothing wrong so far as the knowledge of the police department went, the favor was denied her.

"You won't lock me up, eh?" she cried. "Well, I'll see about that."

And then Miss Smith let loose with a volume of profanity which did not harmonize with her pretty face. So profane was it that she was promptly put behind the bars.

She will tell the judge about it this morning.

ATLANTA SALESMAN DIES IN HICKORY, N. C.

Hickory, N. C., September 29.—Garnett Q. Aklin, a salesman of Atlanta, Ga., died suddenly here today. Efforts to communicate with his widow and two children in Atlanta were fruitless. The body is being held here.

Relatives of Garnett Q. Aklin, whose death is reported in dispatches from Hickory, N. C., could not be located late Monday night. The name was not listed in either the city or telephone directory.

Minister To Ask Lawyer Present Plea for Mercy

Mount Vernon, Ill., September 29.—Back in jail here, despite his protests that he might be lynched, the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight has announced that he will ask the court to appoint a lawyer to present his plea for mercy.

"I am penniless," the clergyman said. "I have no funds to present my case properly. I do not know why I did this mind thing. If I had been in my right mind, none of this would have happened."

Hight was transferred here from the jail at Nashville Monday. With his return to the jail that first housed him after he was arrested for the murder of his wife and Wilford Sweetin, his attorney's husband, he lost his last vestige of courage. When he is not issuing statements begging for mercy, he talks to jail officials and tells them that Mrs. Sweetin should share responsibility for the double poisoning.

"She is as guilty as I," he said. "I killed my wife, she killed her husband. This was so we could be married."

Mrs. Sweetin is still in jail at Salem, where she was rushed after having confessed. She is much more courageous than her pastor-lover, and has sent word to the court that she intends to fight to prove that the minister made her poison her husband.

She has lost all love for him, she said.

Mrs. Sweetin's relatives have retained counsel for her.

"Dead" War Hero Found by Father In Atlanta Prison

New Orleans, September 29.—Robert St. Clair, a convict in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., has been identified as John Bergeron, of Kenosha, Wis., who was listed by the war department as killed in action in France, it was learned here tonight upon the return of F. W. Bergeron, his father.

The war department had been told that Bergeron was killed in action in this country and now rests in a cemetery in Wisconsin.

St. Clair, or Bergeron, was indicted in the name of Robert St. Clair, alias Dr. Robert E. Frank, alias Robert E. Taylor, for transporting a stolen automobile from one state to another. He figured prominently in the news of the time of his arrest because he was said he was wanted in Wisconsin and in Los Angeles, under the name of Dr. Robert Frank.

Is Wanted Elsewhere

As a result of investigation by agents of the federal department of justice it has developed that officers in various places in the middle west, southwest and in California desired to question him in connection with alleged efforts to secure justice in these sections. Among the things under investigation are charges of multiple marriages in California.

Bergeron, about 30 years of age, was indicted by the federal grand jury here after his arrest in New Iberia, Iowa, for having taken a stolen car to that place from Jackson, Miss. He pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of 15 months.

His pardon or release from prison on parole is being sought on the ground that as a war casualty his experience was valuable to the war department, and that he was a man of a mental incompetent.

Federal officials here, with whom his father conferred, said efforts to that already have been instituted through a request to the war department to furnish finger print records and other matter to substantiate the identification.

Visited His Mother.

Bergeron enlisted in the army at Kenosha in April, 1919, and served nearly a year overseas. He was gassed or wounded in the fighting of July, 1918, and wrote a letter to his parents from an American hospital in France. It was dated July 25, 1918. A short time later his parents received formal notification from the war department that their son had been killed in action July 18, 1918. The father was skeptical since he had a letter from the boy bearing a later date, but the war department's records were positive and when a casket bearing the body of a soldier reached home from overseas they accepted it as their own and it was laid away. The identification tag was that of John Bergeron.

The elder Bergeron says there is no mistake about the identification although his boy "has changed," and that when he recovered his memory some time ago he went back to Kenosha and saw "his own" grave, talked with acquaintances and even with his own mother in the shadow of a porch at twilight. He was quoted as having said he was not recognized by them and that they told him John Bergeron had been killed in France and was buried as a war hero in his native state.

Mrs. J. Frank Oldham, of this city, a gold-star mother, social worker and formerly chairman of the American Legion auxiliary hospitalization committee, declined tonight to give details of Bergeron's history when he was here several months ago, a disabled ex-serviceman suffering from an abscessed lung, and confined to her bed. She admitted that she is listed in the Atlanta prison visitors' book as "friend and attorney" of the man but that she did not feel at liberty to make known his affairs.

MEEKER TO RIDE U. S. ARMY PLANE ON OREGON TRAIL

Washington, September 29.—Acting Secretary Davis, of the war department, approved today a request from Ezra Meeker, 90-year-old pioneer of Seattle, that he be permitted to fly back in an army airplane across the trail he followed in frontier days with an ox team on his way westward. Meeker will travel from Seattle to Dayton, Ohio, as a passenger in an army machine, arriving there in time to witness the airplane races beginning this week.

NEW YORK BANKS ANNOUNCE CREDIT TO MOVE COTTON

New York, September 29.—Banking credits for moving the cotton crop again are being made available to growers by a number of New York banks. Under working agreements which were effected last year, members of several cooperative associations in Texas have been drawing funds for the last six weeks. Preliminary estimates of the amount required by the Texas growers this year ranged between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000. Southern bankers were expected to supply several million dollars additional.

Actress' $4,000,000 Estate Is Bequeathed to Charity

Boston, September 29.—The $4,000,000 estate, which Miss Lotta Crabtree acquired in a colorful career of soap and dance, real estate investment and theater operation goes to charity under the terms of her will which was filed today—and half of the sum goes to form a trust fund for world war disabled veterans and their dependents.

Setting aside only nominal sums for relatives, the actress left hundreds of thousands for dumb animals, needy actors and actresses, hospital and discharged convicts, and the residue to graduates of Massachusetts Agricultural college.

The will establishes a trust fund of $2,000,000 for those men and women in the service of the United States during the world war who were disabled, maimed, wounded or sick, and extends assistance also to their dependents.

"I thoroughly believe that in the making of this particular trust I have selected the noblest and most deserving philanthropy to which my estate can be put," the testatrix said in the will.

Disabled First In Thoughts.

"I have great pride and admiration for the heroic and patriotic service rendered by our soldiers, sailors and women who were in the service of the United States during the late world war, and I have given great consideration to the sacrifices and sufferings that have come to so many of them in the performance of their duties and to the hardships and difficulties which they must continue to suffer in years to come."

The trustees—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A., retired; Judge William C. Wait, of the Massachusetts superior court, and William A. Morse, attorney for Miss Crabtree—are empowered to aid also any hospitals or other organizations performing a similar service to veterans and are directed to use the income from the fund semi-annually.

"Inasmuch as at the present time and in the immediate years to follow there will be greater occasion and demand for aid and assistance than there will be as the years go on," the will directs the trustees further to use the principal of the fund, if necessary, to accomplish the purposes of the trust.

Trust to Last 40 Years.

A life of 40 years for the trust is set by the donor, after which the funds are to go as residue of the estate to the graduates of the Massachusetts Agricultural college. As Miss Crabtree was most closely identified with the states of Massachusetts, California and New York, the will says, preference shall be given to veterans.

Look for film on your teeth—that's the cause. How to combat it

Look at your teeth. If dull, cloudy, run your tongue across them. You will feel a film. That's the cause of the trouble. You must fight it.

Film is that viscous coat which you feel. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It hides the natural luster of your teeth.

It also holds food substance which ferments and causes acid. In contact with teeth, this acid invites decay. Millions of germs breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So dingy teeth mean more than loss of good appearance. They may indicate danger, grave danger to your teeth.

New methods now that mean greater tooth beauty plus better protection from tooth troubles

Ordinary tooth pastes were unable to cope adequately with that film. Not one could effectively combat it. Harsh grit tended to injure the enamel. Soap and chalk were inadequate.

Now modern dental science has found new combatants. Their action is to curdle film and then harmlessly remove it. They are embodied in a new-tooth paste called Pepsodent—a scientific method that is changing the tooth cleaning habits of some 50 different nations.

Don't you think it worth while to try it for 10 days; then to note results yourself?

ALWAYS PROTECTED.—When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle thee.—Isaiah 43:2.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.—The Pan-American Commercial congress, to be conducted under the auspices of the Southern Commercial congress, of which Dr. Clarence J. Owen is president, will begin its four-day session in Atlanta tomorrow.

Delegations are expected from many of the Latin countries of the western hemisphere, and here they will confer with regard to trade conditions, interrelated interests, etc.

There will be delegated representatives of the United States to meet and confer with these South and Central American representatives.

The conference, in formal sessions, will hear addresses by many leading men, and the occasion promises to be helpful.

Atlanta extends a cordial welcome to all the delegates and others attending this conference.

The business interests of this city are deeply interested in the business interests of many of the southern nations. Commodities made in Atlanta are distributed on a large scale in South and Central American countries. Atlanta's trade, in several outstanding lines, is peculiarly heavy in Cuba, in Porto Rico, in the Argentine and in Brazil.

The South Atlantic ports, nearest to the ports of the south, ought to be more freely used for the transportation to these countries. Passenger lines should operate from the South Atlantic ports.

The Monroe doctrine has kept a close bond of amity between the nations of the Americas. Their trade relationships have been most satisfactory. Their commercial interests are closely allied.

It is hoped that the Pan-American congress may serve a useful purpose.

"MYTH" AND "NAME."

In a fighting speech delivered before the New York state convention following his nomination for a fourth term, Governor Al Smith said:

"We will have four solid weeks to show the people of this state that we cannot rot under the record, nor nominate a myth in Washington and a name in New York and get away with it."

Whatever truth there may be in the appellation as applied to President Coolidge, there is no doubt that the nomination of young Theodore Roosevelt by the New York republicans was for the one and specific purpose of capitalizing his name, and bringing into what Senator Wadsworth possibly regards a desperate struggle against odds, the spirit of his dead father who was in his day one of the strongest figures known to New York politics by either party since the days of Grover Cleveland.

Young Roosevelt, however, has a strong personality of his own. He has not the winsome personal contact that his father had, nor has he the virile force and dynamic ability of his father, nor perhaps the freedom from political exigencies that his father had. Notwithstanding, he has made a clean, wholesome record, first as an assemblyman in his state, and lastly as assistant secretary of the navy, and is undeniably the strongest man the republicans could have nominated in his personal fitness is appraised in conjunction with the drawing power of his name.

It is unkind and, perhaps, unfair to assume that the republicans of New York, in the son, are exploiting the father who has passed, in a desperate political battle to carry New York state for the republican state and national tickets.

On the other hand, had the assistant secretary of navy Roosevelt been a Jones or a Brown, or even a Smith, as is the illustrious name of his opponent, there is no good reason to believe that he would have been nominated on his political record. His father, who had been police commissioner of New York, rode into the governorship of New York as a rough-riding-warrior, fresh from the shot and shell of San Juan hill. The son had no such appeal for the nomination. He was chosen solely for the votes that he might be able to pile up against the one most outstanding figure in New York's public life today, Al Smith.

It will be a contest of nation-wide importance, for the present governor of New York was practically conscripted by the democrats in the interest of the national ticket. In his speech of acceptance he significantly referred to John W. Davis as "the greatest democrat in America."

The campaign in that state will be followed with peculiar concern by the national leaders of both parties. At the present time the odds are in favor of the election of Governor Smith—and very probably the placing of New York state in the Davis column.

THE COASTAL HIGHWAY.

The managing secretary of the Brunswick Board of Trade, Fred G. Warde, writes the Manufacturers' Record interestingly of the plans for building Georgia's part of the south Atlantic coastal highway from Washington to Miami.

This highway is planned from the capital south via Richmond, Norfolk, Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Brunswick, Jacksonville and St. Augustine, and thence to Miami, with plans to carry it eventually across the keys to Key West.

Thus it will come into Georgia at the Carolina line near Savannah and parallel the sea through Brunswick and Darien to the St. Mary's river bridge, which is the Georgia-Florida line.

Speaking of the Georgia plan for building this highway with concrete surface all the way—as is proposed—Mr. Warde says:

"A special act of the Georgia legislature was passed last summer creating the coastal highway bonded district, empowering the counties of Chatham, Bryan, Liberty, McIntosh, Glynn and Camden to form themselves into a body for constructing the highway through these counties and authorizing the coastal highway bonded district to issue bonds and provide a method of retiring the bonds and paying interest thereon.

"The bond issue will be for $900,000, with the state of Georgia furnishing a like amount and the federal government, $1,800,000. Bonds will be retired in 30 years and the assessment against each county will be in proportion to the taxable value of real and personal property (including public utilities) returned for taxation. Thus it will be seen that the poorer counties of this bonded district will, under this plan, be the greatest beneficiaries and only be called on to pay a very small percentage of the cost of the highway. According to the present system of taxing gasoline in Georgia these poorer counties will receive sufficient gas tax money to pay their entire quota of this expenditure, and in some counties the quota will be so small that only 50 per cent of the gas tax money received each year will be required.

"Under this plan Georgia will have, perhaps, one of the finest 200-mile highways in the United States, which will be known hereafter as Georgia's part of the South Atlantic Coastal highway."

This is one piece of constructive highway legislation that the assembly passed at its last session that many people have overlooked. The proposed highway in question will be of tremendous value to the coastal section of the state, and its contemplation should serve to strengthen work on the Dixie, Bankhead and other trunk-line highways coming into Georgia. The necessity of joining up the links by building in the weak links is important in all of these through-state highways. There will be lively competition before long in bidding for the enormous automobile tourist travel coming in from the north and west.

As to the reasons for a concrete road Mr. Warde says:

"On account of a seven-foot rise in the tide along the Georgia coast, an ordinary surfaced highway would not sustain the immense traffic for any definite length of time, so a plan to build a 20-foot concrete road 200 miles in length from the South Carolina line through Georgia to the Florida line has been perfected."

While specific conditions make a permanent hard-surface road essential in this instance, the fulness of year-round service and economy of maintenance ought to demand a permanent hard surface on every through-state highway, whether along the coast, in middle Georgia, or in the mountains.

Occasionally the auto driver stops at the crossing and let's the Limited pass.

Politics is never too red hot for the office seeker to handle.

The Dark, Dread Rain.
To wreck Life's peace,
Sear the heart and the brain,
The merciless fall
Of the dark, dread rain!

All night, all night,
By the lone fire-light,
It beats back to Judgment
The ghosts in flight.

A spirit of evil,
With death-cups to drain,
Is it God sends the scourge
Of the dark, dread rain?

All night, all night,
By the lone fire-light,
It gives death to the dream
That brings heaven in sight.

Lost Love at Life's window
Is pleading in vain,
And the answer is only
The dark, dread rain.

The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the warpath and everyone he met insisted on paying what he owed him. One man wiped out a debt of long standing. On his return to his office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, ten bushels of apples, twenty-two bushels of potatoes, a cord of wood and a barrel of molasses that had been brought in. All the county editors are trying to borrow Winchester's.

"Uncle Isaac Treadwell, of Greshamville, now in his 81st year, is probably the oldest active farmer in this section of Georgia. This year he has made a nice patch of corn. He did all the work himself, with the exception of breaking and plowing, which he did for planting. Mr. Treadwell told all of his work."

ON BLENDING.
I have a friend whose character seems to be wonderfully blended, all the elements seeming to be so beautifully made into the one whole.

On the other hand, I have many friends who have patches of fine and strong characteristics, but whose other characteristics do not blend with these fine ones.

It does seem as though most of us were made like this. But there is no one of us unable to improve this condition.

It takes patience, control, insight, vision, tolerance to produce a quiet and beautifully blended character.

What a thrill we get from the painted picture whose colors blend and intermingle and make the entire work a thing of beauty.

I have an exquisitely bound book that lies on the stand beside where I write. I keep it near me because it is so beautiful and is filled with such beautiful thoughts. It is called "The Inner Beauty" and is a small book of essays by Maeterlinck. A book-binder in London produced just a handful of copies, each bound by hand and stamped with gold and inlaid with different colored leathers which peep into the silk of the inside covers. Everything about this book, from the make-up to the lovely thoughts, blends.

We can not only work toward making our entire character blend, but we can also seek to make our life blend with all the many changing and trying circumstances of this world.

This is one of the secrets of a happy life.

How sweet are the notes of a perfectly harmonized melody. They are able to soothe and smooth the most troubled heart.

A day in which the different duties and tasks blend, so as to make one feel that that day has been well spent, while this is the thing that brightens the background of life and makes the working out of our dreams bear the fruit of reality.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, September 29.—Gotham is filled with men who ride on the crest of the wave for awhile—and then disappear. They sink. Nobody hears of them again except for a hurried scribble under a telephone call for a quick loan.

From the pleasant purr of Fifth avenue they drift to the hideous jangle of Avenue A. They seem to have expressed their accumulative ability in one shot. And then they wait around for something to happen, believing it was genius not accident that brought a taste of fortune.

One may catch the East Side streets and find scores of men once pointed out in cafes for money-making prowess. Some were on the right side of the market in a sky-rocketing break and others had a single idea that brought quick and profitable returns.

When the tide turns they lose courage. And then just wait. They cannot face the ordeal of beginning over again. A wise old Wall street financier declares he never knew a failure who didn't prime himself with the false courage of "something is bound to happen."

New York is one place in the world where something doesn't happen without effort. The modus operandi of the town is action. You see it expressed everywhere, in dancing taxis, brisk delivery wagons, racing limousines and hurrying pedestrians.

It is not a skidding highway to success. It is a long, rocky and uphill road. I can count five men of my acquaintance who five years ago were ennobled in fine apartments. They made it fast and they spent it faster and today in bad bedrooms they await a turn of fickle fortune.

Sudden wealth followed by sudden poverty is one of the most tragic things in life. Most of these men tell you they had their ordinary lives and they were easily able to stem the tide when the bad breaks came.

Incidentally there is one man who quit quite a wide swath on Broadway.

An Arab riding a huge camel through the streets of Baghdad became intoxicated with the plaudits of the crowds of the boulevards and started to pull off some stunts. After refreshing himself at an establishment he had not heard of before, he was paid off of champagne. Both rider and camel, thoroughly drunk, started careening through the streets. They entered a shop on the Boulevard Haussmann, and the camel, with its upturned customers and silverware, sent customers and attendants into shrieks of hysteria and calmly walked out. Not wishing to shoot at the "ship of the desert," soldiers in the line of the frightful onslaught shouting to pedestrians to get out of the way. The camel swayed into a motorbus and the motorbus upon its lantern posts bent double under its gentle rules. On the market its appearance brought a panic demonium that bordered on a panic amidst the stalls. Finally the camel was rounded up and the rider, a Madeleine church, the camel mounted the steps and lay down. The Arab descended and was arrested. But he had to be released an hour later to allow him to get away with his master and his master's master.

The gentlemen of the trade union congress in Britain, where the red trading union international of Russia was the first to be formed, are waiting for their deliberations. Said one: "When God created the world He said: 'Let there be light.' Comrades, then the international capitalists came along and said: 'Let there be peace.' Let us fold our arms and stop all work." That sounds fine, that sounds like an ideal solution for the time being. But let us remember the past. In Germany there were 110 social democrats in the reichstag when the war broke out. They were pledged to avoid the great international catastrophe. They were to produce a quiet life within their power. But in the hands started to play and the junkers waved the flag the 110 voted for the war credits with touching unanimity. Sermons To Live By
BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY.

Text: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and He shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noonday." Psalm 37:5-6.

Joseph, of whom it is said this passage speaks, might have replied, at one point in his career: "I have committed my way to Thee, Lord, and Thou hast brought me up to strange parts, into singular situations."

Doubtless, some such thoughts did pass through his alert mind, to which God quite surely answered in the connection of his life. I will bring my will to pass in your committed life—in vindicating the wisdom of my course with you, I will, at the same time, vindicate you and your way of life.

This has been done with such conspicuous success that Joseph's name is today the synonym of that virtue which, at one time, he stood falsely charged.

His righteousness of chastity God hath brought forth as the light. The special splendor of Joseph's example is that, despite the necessities that tempted a doubtful attitude, he kept his way of life committed to God.

He committed it to God to remain committed, come what would. He would not withdraw his ways from God, but he never would and he never did.

"He that putteth his hand unto the plow and his eye toward the field, he shall be called 'a man of the kingdom of God.'"

To him that overcometh, and to none other, shall be the crown.

Country's Attention Turning to South For Its Recreation

Editor Constitution: The enclosed correspondence is of great interest to the south. We are delighted to know that Mr. Hollomon has accepted the election to membership on the advisory council of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation. You will note in Secretary Knapp's letter that the suggested change to the general council will carry with it the very important method of selection and re-election to the membership and that Mr. Hollomon was the only addition made to the advisory council at this time. As a member of the committee on the selection of work of all ages, I am especially impressed by the fact that Mr. Hollomon's election at this time is the most significant in that the attention of the entire country is turning toward the south for recreation as well as for industrial and other development.

BONNELL H. STONE,
Secretary National Road and Recreation Association.
Blairsville, Ga., September 26, 1924.

The letter from the executive secretary of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation follows:

Dear Mr. Stone: At its meeting on September 17, the executive committee approved suggestions offered by certain members to the effect that the advisory council should be reorganized. The council should hereafter consist of one representative from each member organization, and representative to be selected or elected wholly in the discretion of the governing body of each organization, and submitted for consideration by the present advisory council at its next meeting.

Because of the proposed change, the executive committee felt it proper to fill the existing vacancies in the present council, but in considering your letter Mr. Dr. Merriam, under date of June 11, it was impressed by the very great desirability of having James A. Hollomon actively interested in the work of the organization. Several members of the committee are familiar with Mr. Hollomon's outstanding leadership in outdoor recreation work in Georgia and his interest in the work of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation. All who know Mr. Hollomon and who are familiar with his outstanding leadership and great constructive work along many lines will appreciate this election. I am personally delighted with this election for many reasons, some of which were expressed in my letter to Dr. Merriam under date of June 11, when placing Mr. Hollomon's name in nomination, and I am sure that you can count upon Mr. Hollomon's hearty cooperation.

For your information a copy of the proceedings and secretary's report of the last annual meeting of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation is herewith enclosed. Some of the resolutions adopted by this association may be of special interest to you.

Thanking you again for your kindness in keeping in touch with the meetings of the advisory council and assuring you of my very best interest in all that contrib-

Since Everybody Wants Peace, for Pity's Sake
Let's Have a Little —AND AS FOR YOU, YOU BIG RED NECKED MILITARIST

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
ANOTHER TIRED BUSINESS MAN.

His doctor calls him "an aggressive high-strung business man," aged 43, who complained of a consistent, dull ache over the occiput—that's the back of the head—since the war. He had insomnia, nervousness, restlessness, nervous depression, and a general feeling of being "run down."

A tired business man sure enough! These symptoms had developed only two weeks previously, and I'm afraid the doctor felt in with the t. b. man's notion that the trouble was attributable to "intense worry relative to business affairs which had become seriously entangled." The t. b. man remarked that he was first time in his life he had lost his "pep."

This young man organized a business of his own at the age of 32 years, and devoted himself to it with fanatical intensity because he loved his business and the competition in it. He had no interest in the popular diversions. He took little time off and was a man who was first time in his life he had lost his "pep."

The young man was moderately and like most quiet boozers he particularly emphasized that he took no stimulants because he was a negative. He was also "an incessant cigar smoker." That's very positive. Whenever you encounter a term incessant or inveterate in relation to a man's use of tobacco you may get ready for something to break.

The young man weighed 178 pounds. How tall he was he did not carefully omit to say, but the doctor does not say he was "adequately nourished." Sounds kind of flabby to me. The young man probably ate as intemperately as he drank and smoked, and he was one of those small caliber men who get so "entangled" or taken up with business that they just can't take time to exercise. So you see the young man was headed for a fall.

His heart seemed normal in size and position, but his pulse rate was rather fast. I won't count it, but we'll just say it was a wee speck too fast.

The systolic blood pressure was well within normal limits, and so was the diastolic pressure. Never mind just how many millimeters of mercury, but remember his blood pressure was all right.

No abnormality was elicited in the examination of the nervous system. Wassermann test negative. "Finally a negative except for indican in excreta, which doesn't mean much, unless the patient is on a restricted diet."

The patient displayed considerable emotion when his family and business affairs were touched upon. That's not a negative, either. He became a trifle tearful in telling how his pride was crushed and his life work fair to be fruitless, and all that. His doctor, of course, the patient could not think of leaving his business!

Nine days later the doctor was hurriedly summoned, and found the young business man comatose, face flushed and swollen, body in cold sweat, breathing labored. The patient had complained early in the morning of dizziness and nausea, had walked to the bathroom, vomited, and fell in a kind of convulsion.

Necropsy disclosed an extensive hemorrhage into the central nervous system, a apoplexy, from diseased arteries.

A sad story which happens too often because men get so taken up with business that they neglect their own health. What caused the diseased arteries in that business man's brain? Who knows? But I'd hazard a guess that intemperance in smoking, drinking and eating had something to do with it.

Last of Harding's Ohio Gang Uncle Charlie Patton Forsakes His Hoe Quits His Washington Job

Washington, September 29.—Uncle Charlie Patton, almost the last of the "Ohio gang" left over from the Harding days, is going back to Marion. He has been white house gardener for four years, he's seen it all, and now he's ready to go back to his quiet little town and count off the remainder of his years—he was 85 last week.

"This man," he said, perking his head toward the white house a few yards away, "is going to give them all a run. La Follette is going to be his strongest competitor."

Already Uncle Charlie is thinking of the quiet home with his daughter out in Marion, where he won't have to clean up the litter from the crowd which turned out to see the Prince of Wales, or take up the trampled grass of the retail druggists' delegation.

Uncle Charlie goes back holding his head considerably higher than most political jobholders. Contrary to the usual method of entrance and exit which most appointees make, Uncle Charlie was asked to come to Washington—and he was not asked to leave.

It was a raw February day in 1921, just as Harding was getting ready to come to Washington to be inaugurated. Uncle Charlie had fired up the old iron stove in the press shack behind the Harding home on Mount Vernon street. Harding had started back toward the house from a press conference.

"Senator," Uncle Charlie always addressed him that way in those days, "Senator, I just bought a round trip ticket to Washington. I'm going to see you inaugurated."

Harding looked at him with mock sternness.

"You go right back and turn in the return coupon. You're not coming back here."

Uncle Charlie kept the white house garden as neatly as he kept the Marion front lawn during the campaign. He had been told that his instructions were not to hurt himself working.

Harding's death shook the old fellow who had known the president from boyhood.

Soon after the Coolidges moved in, Mrs. Coolidge was walking about the rose garden and saw Uncle Charlie. She called him over.

"You're Uncle Charlie, aren't you?" she inquired. "I just wanted to tell you that we expect you to stay with us."

So Uncle Charlie tore up the resignation which he had been laboring over for several days. But the old familiar faces are gone. He wants to go back to the folks. So Washington tourists will be regaled no more with the epic about how he lost the corner of his ear at Shiloh. They won't hear either how he gave Harding a chew from his plug one day at Marion. Uncle Charlie is going back and tell the Marion folk all about Washington now.

Crystal City, Mo., September 29.—Three bandits, using an automobile, disarmed Postmaster B. B. Houghton, of this city, who was returning from the railroad station to the postoffice late this afternoon, and escaped with a pouch containing $60,000, mostly currency.

The money had arrived on a train consigned to a local bank to meet the semi-monthly payroll of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company here.

Postmaster Houghton was accompanied by a negro, who also was disarmed. Not a single shot was fired during the robbery.

FIERCE FIGHTING AGAIN UNDER WAY

$250,000 IS OFFERED FOR CAPTURE OF FOES

London, September 30.—Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, has offered a reward of $250,000 for the capture of either President Tsao Kun, of the Peking government, or General Wu Pei Fu, according to the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail.

He wants them alive. According to the correspondent, the cannery Chang will pay only $75,000 specie for them dead.

Shanghai, September 29.—Fierce fighting is under way on all fronts as the armies of General Chi Hsieh Yuan continue their advance on Shanghai.

The forces of General Lu Yung Hsiang are retreating slowly to their second line of defense, and the booming of siege guns is constantly heard in Shanghai.

Positions in the fighting are relatively the same as they were a fortnight ago, but the Kiangsu armies have brought up their heaviest artillery and furthermore have increased the number of troops in their line.

Several hundred wounded men have just arrived in the foreign settlement here. Meanwhile, the Americans and Europeans in the foreign colony have renewed their program of defense, guarding the borders of the foreign zone. Barricades have been constructed in the past few hours at strategic approaches to the settlement.

American marines and sailors join with other foreign troops in patrolling the streets.

Despite the atmosphere of constant alarms, the night life of the city continues uninterrupted, and while the thunder of the Kiangsu artillery draws closer the dance halls, motion picture shows and concert halls are filled with pleasure-seeking crowds.

Chi's attack, launched 24 hours ago, has become increasingly more vigorous. Since dawn, airplanes, tanks, and heavy artillery have been engaged in the fighting.

At an early hour the Chekiang troops claimed advances at Kiating and Malu. The Kiangsu advance, as predicted, was aimed at the Wusong forts beyond the foreign settlement. Warships shelled Liubo during the day.

JAPANESE PARTY URGES INTERVENTION.

Tokyo, September 29.—The Koseikai political party has passed resolutions urging intervention in the Chinese civil war, declaring that continuing the war would jeopardize Japan's interests, but in governmental circles, including the war department, the idea of intervention is deprecated.

General Itami, chief of the intelligence bureau of the general staff, stressed the non-intervention policy in an exclusive interview Monday with the United News, and declared that Americans who fear Japan's policies in the east were ignorant of conditions here.

"The charge that Japan is trying to control the central powers in China through Chang Tso Lin's army is one evidence of utter ignorance," he declared.

"Whatever the immediate issue of the conflict, China's problem will remain far from settled," he said. "A victorious Chang or a victorious Wu Pei Fu will signify nothing. Japan's attitude of non-intervention on the part of the powers is due to a correct knowledge that the powers will be unable to solve this problem, and to an honest fear that misdirected intervention will involve the far east in endless conflict, leading to the spread of the conflagration."

General Itami asserted that the only effectual solution of the problem lay in waiting for the exhaustion of China's warring factions.

Present Prices Of Cotton Held To Be Too Low

New Orleans, September 29.—An appeal to the cotton producers over the south to follow more orderly processes in marketing their staple, in order to stop declines in prices, was issued here today after a meeting of commissioners of agriculture from five cotton growing states.

The commissioners said in their appeal that the present price is not only so low as to make cotton production unprofitable, but is lower than the statistical information on supply and consumption warrants.

"In our opinion, the government forecasts of cotton production have been consistently far in excess of the actual crop, and the various agencies inimical to the cotton farmer have seized upon these forecasts to hammer the price below the cost of production," said the statement.

"From the present crop outlook and the small carry-over from last year's crop, the available supply will barely meet the needs of the world for the coming year."

The statement concluded: "This action is approved by the commissioners of other states who could not personally attend."

The commissioners who attended the meeting were J. H. Moore, of Alabama; W. A. Graham, Jr., of North Carolina; P. P. Garner, of Mississippi; B. Harris, of South Carolina; and Harry D. Wilson, of Louisiana.

Ouster Plot Laid To Royal Faction Of Greek Church

A "royalist" conspiracy to oust him from the pulpit of the Greek Orthodox church, of Atlanta, was charged to the church board of trustees Monday by Thomas Papageorge, pastor.

Papageorge filed a petition in Fulton superior court in which he asked that members of the board and two other members of the congregation be restrained from taking any action toward ousting him. Judge W. D. Ellis granted a temporary order to this effect, pending hearing of the pastor's charges in superior court.

Papageorge's petition alleges that certain members of the congregation, whom he terms "royalists," are conspiring to oust him from his position as pastor. This, he says, is in violation of the laws, customs and discipline of the church, maintaining that only the "archbishop of North America and South America is clothed with such authority."

"Most members of the church were born in Greece," the petition sets out, "and are divided in political opinion, some adhering to the recently deposed king and others to the democratic party. Thus the church has become divided in two factions, the royalist faction having a majority. Petitioner is democratic and for this reason the defendants seek to displace of him."

Papageorge sets out in his petition that he was notified recently of a meeting at which a vote was to be made to decide whether or not he was to be retained as pastor. Since the "royalist" faction has a majority vote, he declares he has no defense to offer.

Papageorge declares that he was appointed by the archbishop, and on the day of the field forces here.

The financial aspect was canvassed at a conference between Governor Neff and members of the sanitary livestock commission, with the result that the governor announced he would confer tomorrow in Austin with the state banking commissioner in an effort to induce the bankers of the state to cash deficiency warrants for an initial $50,000 at face value. A like amount is on deposit in Houston banks as the first contribution of the federal government toward stamping out the disease, according to a statement by Dr. Marion Imes, of California, foot and mouth disease expert of the department of agriculture and in charge of the field forces here.

Dr. Imes, who was called into the conference, said the initial contribution of the state should not be less than $50,000, to which the governor assented, adding that the full powers of the state government were behind the struggle.

Meanwhile, the state has the equivalent of approximately $200,000, including $7,000 set apart for the sanitary

HULL IS UNOPPOSED FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Nashville, Tenn., September 29.—Cordell Hull, representative in congress from the fourth Tennessee district and former chairman of the Democratic national committee, will be unopposed in race for reelection.

Professor E. L. Stockton, acting dean of Cumberland university and republican nominee today announced his withdrawal from the race.

Means Is Too "Broke" To Pay $900 for Appeal Transcript

New York, September 29.—Gaston B. Means, who recently told a federal court jury that hundreds of thousands of dollars had passed through his hands in nation-wide bootlegging operations, asked Federal Judge Foster today to grant him a three months' stay in which to file an appeal from his recent conviction for bootlegging, pleading that he was "too broke" to produce the $900 necessary for a copy of the stenographic record of the testimony at the trial.

His plea was denied, but Judge Foster gave Means until Friday to appeal to the circuit court of appeals for an order which would permit him to appeal in the guise of a pauper.

Means and his one-time secretary, Elmer W. Jarnecke, were convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The former department of justice agent was sentenced to serve a two-year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and to pay a fine of $10,000. Jarnecke's sentence was a two-year term in the same penitentiary and a $5,000 fine.

Jarnecke and Means, with their attorney, Thomas B. Felder, await trial on charges of having collected $65,000 from officials of the Cregar system, convicted of having used the mails in stock defrauding operations.

On the representation that they would use the money in bribing the then attorney general, Daugherty, to use his influence in their behalf.

commission's use which Dr. Imes said would be made here by Washington. In the estimation of the governor, that sum would carry the situation, except for payment of the cattle marked for destruction, until the legislature meets in January.

Dr. Imes told the conference that previous outbreaks had never been eradicated in less than seven months and it was his judgment that with the most favorable developments, inspectors should be kept in the field here for that length of time.

Plans To Finance Cattle Epidemic Battle Are Made

Houston, Texas, September 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Plans to finance the campaign against the foot and mouth disease, now in the fourth day of its progress in this vicinity, the announcement that no new outbreaks had been discovered, and feverish preparations in the face of difficulties to destroy approximately 1,900 infected cattle on about 8,000 acres of pasture land, were the outstanding developments in the quarantine situation here today.

The financial aspect was canvassed at a conference between Governor Neff and members of the sanitary livestock commission, with the result that the governor announced he would confer tomorrow in Austin with the state banking commissioner in an effort to induce the bankers of the state to cash deficiency warrants for an initial $50,000 at face value. ## Forgiving Wife Fends Jail Term From Her Hubby

Baltimore, September 29.—"You should be her slave as long as you live," Judge James H. Gorter told William J. Smyth.

"You're the most wonderful woman I've ever seen," said the court to Mrs. Grace Smyth, the defendant's dark-haired, attractive wife.

Eight weeks ago Smyth shot his wife in a minute of rage. He pumped five bullets into her body and she barely lived.

Mrs. Smyth pleaded with the court Monday to spare her husband and told how they had been reconciled as Smyth wept at her bedside in the hospital.

"I prayed to live so he wouldn't hang, judge," she said. "He's sorry and I've forgiven him. We are together again and very happy. Don't send him to jail."

The court then paid a tribute to the remarkable patience of Mrs. Smyth.

"Smyth," he said, turning to the man, "if this woman had died, you would have hanged. Now she has given your life back to you. It should belong to her hereafter. You should be her slave as long as you live."

"I'm going to sentence you to five years in the Maryland penitentiary and parole you so you and your three children can be together again."

Running true to the prescribed form for reconciled couples the Smyths then left the courtroom arm in arm.

Calls for Davis Present Problem In Fixing Dates

Locust Valley, N. Y., September 29.—John W. Davis remained at his home here today preparing material for addresses which he is to deliver in the final presentation of his case to the American people. Meanwhile his managers were endeavoring to complete the itinerary for the last month of his campaigning, but were having difficulty in keeping the number of engagements within reasonable bounds.

Party leaders in the various eastern, western and "border" states which the democratic presidential candidate is to visit are urging elaborate programs, including not only a rather formidable number of major addresses, but many brief talks at luncheons and at scores of towns through which Mr. Davis' special train will pass.

A tentative schedule has been arranged, but many changes probably will be necessary as the last big offensive of the campaign rolls forward. It is fairly well settled, however, that Mr. Davis will speak at Indianapolis October 11, Kansas City, Mo., October 15, St. Louis October 18, Louisville October 21 and Cincinnati October 23.

PAT HARRISON LINKS COOLIDGE, OIL SCANDAL

Cleveland, September 29.—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, opening the democratic speaking campaign here today at the luncheon of the women's domestic organization, criticized the record of President Coolidge.

"They say Coolidge should not be held responsible for the corruption that infested the Harding administration," he said. "Why, the wild orgy of the veterans' bureau was exposed through congressional mandates. The Teapot Dome scandal corroded even the rafters and corridors of the senate chamber, so nauseating was it in its foul odors. Calvin Coolidge could not escape it, because he was sitting above us and over us in the same chamber with us. The country was not forgotten, too, that on the first day President Harding went in as chief executive, he said: 'The sort of government I have in mind ought to take advantage of the capacity and experience of a man like Governor Coolidge by bringing him into the cabinet councils.'"

"If Calvin Coolidge did not obtain some inside information touching the corruption of the Teapot Dome from these cabinet members, then it was certainly his duty, in the interest of the country and in good faith of his high position to his party and administration, to apprise the president and the cabinet of what he had heard as presiding officer of the senate."

On the subject of reparations, Senator Harrison said:

"We are told this administration deserves great credit for the part it has played in concluding the reparations report."

"I charge that the republican party has withheld from the American people and the world a reparations settlement for over three years. I charge that if this administration had possessed any courage, statesmanship or vision, it could have accomplished three years ago what it has accomplished now."

Petrels in Good Condition For Fort Benning Game

BY BILL MORROW.

The Oglethorpe grid camp will move on to Columbus Saturday for a meeting with Camp Benning, the visit to the officers' quarters being the first invasion by the local grid combination this season. Due to their victories during the past season over the Camp Benning officers, the Panthers appear to be the best bet in the state, though a hefty and interesting scrap is predicted by the doers for this Saturday afternoon get-together.

Coach Harry Robertson called a halt to the Petrels' heavy workouts yesterday at Hernando Hall, allowing his charges their first day of rest since the opening of the grid training September 1. The day of rest did not come about on account of injuries to the varsity eleven, but because of the condition of the grounds and the heavy pace that had been set to get the candidates in condition for the tilt with the Tech Jacks.

Petrels Are Optimistic.
The 10 to 0 defeat handed the Oglethorpe gridders by Tech has failed to cast a shadow over the Petrel stronghold, optimism being evident on every hand. There had been a great deal of doubt expressed before Saturday as to the strength of the Petrel defense. The display of the line against the Jacks showed that the Stormy Petrels were far from weak in this department. The offense failed to function correctly in the initial tilt for the '24 Petrel opener, but with better weather conditions there is little doubt that the Petrels will show a great offensive front.

Following the departure of Jim

Robertson, Harry Robertson, brother to the famous Dartmouth star, has taken sole charge of the Oglethorpe camp. Harry Robertson in his short acquaintance with the Oglethorpe grid candidates has shown his worth as a coach and it is expected that he will successfully carry on the work started by his brother.

Want "Jim" Back.
Efforts are being made at the university to have Coach Jim Robertson return during the following seasons to help his brother two weeks before and after the Tech tilt, and though pressing business has caused the departure of "Big Jim," it is expected that he will return next year to help the team prepare for the Jacks.

Though the Petrels were on the smaller end of a 19 to 0 count in Saturday's fracas, the belief that they have the greatest eleven in the history of their institution's activities on the gridiron was very much in evidence. Holding the great offense of the Jacks is far from an easy affair. The Oglethorpe gridders, however, holding the Jacks back without a touchdown for over three quarters showed that Coach Harry Robertson had not spent hours in vain carefully coaching the Petrel eleven in defensive tactics.

Contrary to past happenings, the Petrels came through the Tech battle without any serious injuries. The only hurts reported being of the minor order, slight bruises and strained muscles. The lay-off yesterday afternoon gave the Petrels plenty of time to rid themselves of sore spots and the entire list that played against Tech should report for practice this afternoon.

McGraw To Keep Boys Busy Until Hour of Big Series

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, September 29.—Johnny McGraw, described as the little Napoleon and the master mind of baseball, will entrain his elite troupe Thursday morning and conduct the New York Giants to Washington, there to engage the Senators in the first world series that has ever disturbed the historic quiet along the Potomac.

He will rehearse them in their work steps where the Senators play ball. The players will then draw rations at the hotel, and after a reasonable lapse of time, will be checked into their rooms by the little Napoleon, Theodore Dolan, the secret service of the little Napoleon's army, will assimilate his evening's chew and start patrolling his post along the corridors.

Cozy was not much of a ball player when he was playing ball, but there is no better knave and rascal squire in baseball, for here is a man so gifted that he can hear a rubber-tipped poker chip falling on a feather bed at forty rods.

Will Keep Giants Busy.
In the intervening days the Giants will be given sufficient employment to keep their minds on their work, it being McGraw's theory that if he doesn't find work for idle hands, the devil will. McGraw will take a deputation to New Haven Tuesday for an exhibition game, and, although this squad will be composed mainly of reserves, there probably will be some of the regular players in the group. Those who don't go to New Haven will have to report at the Polo Grounds and take some practice in the yard if the weather is tolerable, in the classroom if it isn't.

Frank Frisch, the second baseman and captain of the squad, thinks he will be able to play in the world series, as he has almost recovered from the injury that kept him out of the last critical games for the National league pennant.

The Giants were not able to play their final game with the Phillies Monday because of rain, so McGraw called a staff meeting in the locker rooms and gave an exhibition of master thinking by the master mind.

Babe Makes Money.
When the New York Yankees were last seen, slumped in the leather chairs of the hotel lobby in Philadelphia or drooping against the pillars out in front, with their caps pulled down over their eyes and chewing toothpicks moodily, they were a very melancholy body of athletes. They had lost their world-series money for the first time in four years and, except Babe Ruth, who says he loses money by playing in the world series, they chafe at such receipts. The Babe can make more by going on barnstorming trips, as he usually exacts a large share of the proceeds for his very own self in the small-town displays after the season is over.

Some of the Yankees in the hotel lobby doubtless will be rapped on the head with the auctioneer's gavel during the winter trading season and will find themselves among other associates and wearing other costumes next spring. The Yankees lost the pennant because they had no such reserve as the Giants were able to call upon when the Giants' first-line players began to chip and crack this year. With the foresight and the ruthless eye to signs of senility which make him a great manager, Johnny McGraw had drawn up a stout second phalanx to support his first team, and when the regulars swooned he had Wilson,

SPORT PECULATION
by George Congdon
Senators Winners.
Tech Coaches Busy.
More Honor to Bob.

THE SENATORS at last are pennant winners. Who ever heard of the Washington American league club being a menace to any other bunch of aspiring ball players before this year? Maybe one or two graybeards could tell us, but there aren't any in the present company, and it includes a lot of baseball bugs who live much to say on the subject of "remember when the Senators won—" etc.

The Senators are the most popular pennant winners in many a year in the major leagues. Maybe it is because it was a case of the club ordinarily down and out at this season of the year fighting it out with the New York Yankees, one of the most expensive stables of ball slingers in the land, and, incidentally, world champions from 1923. All that remains now is for Washington to win the series.

WALTER JOHNSON—a grand veteran he is—literally dragged the whole team up by its bootstraps this year, after pitching his best for seventeen years and then losing because of a second-rate club behind him. Bucky Harris wasn't in the background. He stepped to the front, as one of the youngest major league managers, and gave Walter all the help he needed to line up a first-rate team back of the great pitcher.

With a real club behind him, Walter Johnson pitched such remarkable ball that he was the wonder of the world of fans. When time came to decide on the most valuable player in the American league, a pitcher was selected, although heretofore it has been almost impossible to pick a pitcher as a team's greatest asset. Walter Johnson, however, has warranted every bit of faith put in him by the moguls since they picked him as the most valuable in the American.

TECH COACHES will start today after the weaknesses that showed in the Tornado in the opener Saturday with Oglethorpe. They admit there are plenty of rough places to be ironed out, and they're going to put the varsity through the ironing process right away in preparation for V. M. I., which Kid Clay says has a three-touchdown edge on the Jacks. Heavy scrimmage is the order for Tuesday that went out from Coach Alexander's office yesterday.

The Jacks had two days in which to mull over their sins of commission and omission in Saturday's game. The linemen didn't have to do much mulling, for they resembled a brick wall. Certain members of the back field didn't have to suffer much from their consciences individually, but they probably saw plenty of chances—after the game—where they could have worked more effectively together. Yesterday they only took a limbering-up walk and then listened to learned dissertations on football by the coaches.

YESTERDAY was comparatively quiet in the household of Robert T. Jones, Jr., national amateur champion, following that outburst of several thousand Atlantans Sunday evening at Brookwood station when Bob was acclaimed as one of Atlanta's greatest products. He isn't through being honored, though, by a long shot.

That demonstration for Bob Sunday was greater than any ovation ever given spontaneously by Atlanta to any dignitary to visit the town. That speaks worlds for the great sporting element of Atlanta. It was a wonderful appetizer for the formal paying of honor to Bob that is being planned for a later date at the East Lake club, where Bob first took a golf stick in his hands.

O'Connell, Terry and Lindstrom to do first-class work for him.

Yanks Had No Reserve.
Miller Huggins, of the Yankees, had a purchased team of stars but he had not developed a reserve. Then, also, he was sentimental about Everett Scott's record for consecutive games, which is now something like 1,250, and recoiled from the idea of benching Scott and schooling a younger man in his place, although Scott fell off badly this year.

There has been no gradual replacement in the Yankees, Huggins apparently believing that the whole squad will grow old on the same day. That Washington had clinched the pennant, that fact that the same checkbook that bought him Babe Ruth, a pitching staff, an infield, an outfield, a stadium, and a high priced batboy, will buy him a new issue of each.

BEST WISHES ARE WIRED SENATORS

Washington, D. C., September 29.—A telegram from the executive mansion, which was signed by C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president, and addressed to Manager Harris, of the Washington Senators, pennant winners in the American league, said: "Heartiest congratulations to you and your team for your great work in bringing Washington its first pennant. We are proud of you and behind you. On to the world's championship."

PLAYED FINE BALL.
Philadelphia, September 29.—"I wish them all the luck in the world against the Giants," said Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, when informed by The Associated Press that Washington had clinched the pennant. "They have played fine ball all the year, and I wish them the best of luck."

LEAGUE PRESIDENT FELICITATES HARRIS.

Chicago, September 29.—President Ban Johnson, of the American league, tonight telegraphed Stanley Harris, 28-year-old manager of the triumphant Washington club, his congratulations, adding that he had unbounded faith in Harris' ability to win a world's championship.

BARBER FINED FOR FIGHTING

Fort Worth, Texas, September 29.—A fine of $50 today was assessed against Turner Barber, centerfielder of the Memphis Chickadees, of the Southern association, for his part in an altercation with Umpire Johnson, also of the Southern association, immediately following the close of the Sunday series game.

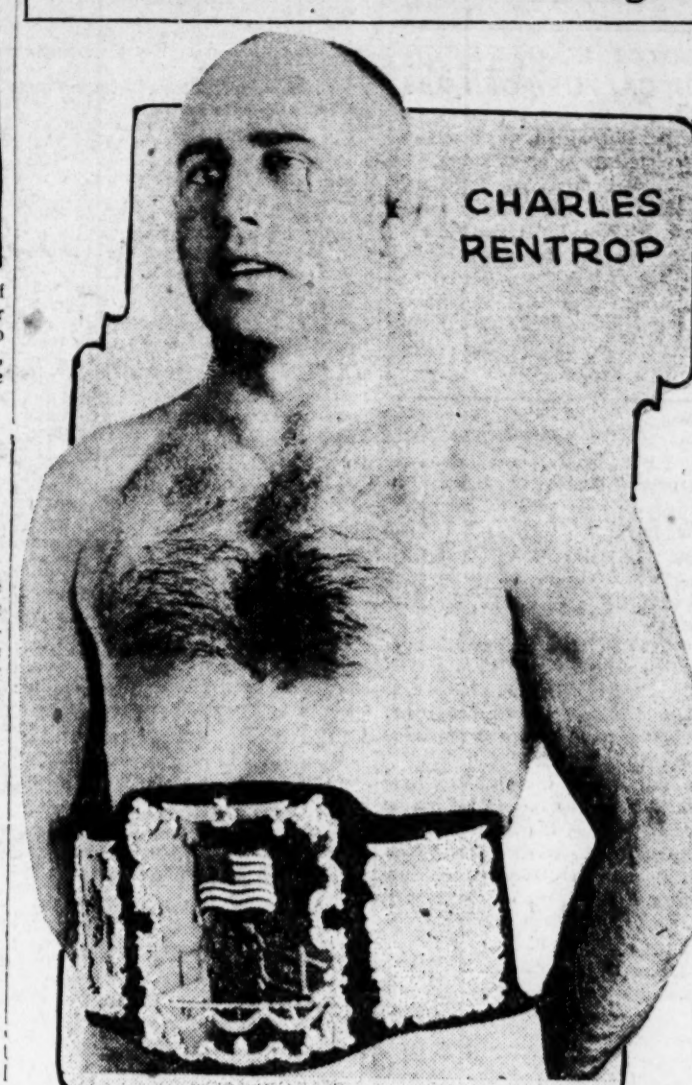

The fight was caused when Anderson, the Memphis first baseman, tried to make third from second after Calvo had caught Lamotte's high fly in the ninth inning, but was called out when Phelan speared Calvo's quick throw for the last out.

Barber, who was coaching at third, immediately made vehement protest and several blows were passed.

At a meeting today between the club officials and the umpires, the arbiters recommended that the Memphis player be fined $100, but it was decided to cut this in half.

Kraft, the home run king of the minors, came to blows with Anderson today when the latter ran over first base, touching Kraft with his spikes. However, Kohlbecker, who was coaching on first base, and the Fort Worth players and umpires in-

Rentrop Wrestles Sarles Tonight at Auditorium

Chet Sarles and Charles Rentrop, principals in the big wrestling show, are to be staged tonight at the City Auditorium for the benefit of the disabled American veterans of the world war, with Kid Elberfeld in the role of matchmaker, were fit and ready Monday for their grueling struggle.

Both from their hotel rooms issued statements to the effect they were ready and waiting. There will be no surprise preliminary to the main event. Just what this would be, Tim Kelleher, spokesman for Elberfeld, would not say. "It has never been done before in Atlanta, and the fans will get more than one thrill out of the event," he said. "We have tried it in many other cities and it has always gone over big."

A. Harbert, commander of the disabled American veterans Monday issued a statement urging every one to attend the wrestling match who could. "Our organization will benefit by the money raised, and the men who are doing a worthy work in helping those men injured and maimed in the war. The support of every sports-

SOUTH'S BEST NEW JOCKEY HORSES IN RACES MAY RIDE EPINARD

The best trotting and pacing horses in the south were assured turf enthusiasts last night for their entertainment next week at the Southeastern fair with announcement of some of the entries for the events, which will continue through the week.

Principal among the horses entered were those from the expensive stables of the American league, managed by Napoleon Direct; Peter Green, by Peter Scott, and the Great Lullwater, by Peter the Great, just back from the grand circuit, where they have been running well into the money, are listed for three events.

The Great Lullwater is entered in the 2-11 trot, Marion C. is booked for the 2-11 pacing, and Peter Green will race in the free-for-all pacing event.

Candler also has a couple of his San Francisco youngsters entered in the slower events. Bootie, by Axvolo, is entered in the 2:18 pace and the 2:20 pace.

Veterans of southern tracks will be here in force. George Stiles is leading them with Gordon, by Peter Montgomery; Glorious Watts, by General Watts; Julia Francis, by Lee Axvolor, and other horses.

J. H. Armstrong has entered Clay Simpson, by J. C. Simpson; Bines, by Ben Joller, and J. F. H., by Moce Belle Onward, by Onward Star is entered by Lee Smith, and Louy Abbe and Mag Abbe, by The Abbe, are entered by Gus Coggins.

Other drivers entering their horses are J. A. Russell, Will Schroeder, Branch, John F. Jones, W. F. Jenkins, O. C. Allsup, M. S. Hodge, F. Gentry, Tom Settle and Tom Gentry.

LIME BURNS GRID PLAYERS

Durham, N. C., September 29.—(Special).—Members of the Trinity college football squad who participated in the game with State college, at Raleigh Saturday, are now suffering from unslacked lime burns.

Although the game was played on a rain-soaked gridiron, practically every member of the Trinity team sustained burns which are still very painful and which came near being serious.

Prior to the opening of the season, unslacked lime had been scattered on the field, in an effort to aid the growth of grass. Heretofore, the turf on Riddick field, State college's sports arena, has been very poor.

The unslacked lime had been put on the field to neutralize, scientifically, the effects of overacidity in the soil. In sections of the gridiron where the grass was particularly sparse, the lime had been liberally used.

Along came the rain, and subsequently the "boiling" or slaking process of the lime began. And every time a member of either team rolled on the sod, he usually collected a goodly portion of the lime on the exposed parts of his anatomy.

Texans Only Need One More Game for Series; Spitball Artist Effective

7,368 SEE SIXTH GAME OF SERIES

Fort Worth, Texas, September 29.—(By The Associated Press).—There were 7,368 paid admissions to the sixth game of the Dixie series here today. The receipts for the day are $10,549.65, which will be divided between the two leagues and the club owners only. The players participated in their last game yesterday.

The receipts were divided as follows: Leagues, $2,109.23, and clubs, $8,440.42. Gross totals follow: Attendance, 58,054; receipts, $81,268.77; clubs, $36,629.23; leagues, $16,256.35; players, $28,383.19.

Fort Worth, Texas, September 29.—(By The Associated Press).—For the third successive day, the rejuvenated Fort Worth Panthers jumped upon the offerings of the Memphis Chickadees pitchers and by means of many home runs, doubles and singles, won their third straight game of the series today.

The game today gives the Panthers the lead in the series with three games won to two lost, after the Southerners had taken a two-game commanding lead that Paul Wachtel, the spitball flinger of the Cats, was permitted to ease up a bit.

Once again the staccato crack of bat against ball, the crashing homeruns and other bingles, quickly turned an ordinary good game into a batting melee with just one question to be solved, "how many runs will the Cats make before the game is over?"

Texans Score Freely.
The Texas representatives scored in six of the eight innings that they were at bat and by the end of the fourth inning they had accumulated such a commanding lead that Paul Wachtel, the spitball flinger of the Cats, was permitted to ease up a bit.

Wachtel was started today after a one-day rest, having won the first Panther victory on Saturday. He has been barred from using the freak delivery on Southern league territory since the first night game at Memphis last night.

His team mates, seeming to recognize the fact that he would likely be at his best, immediately set out to put the game on ice. Rogers, the Memphis pitcher, making his second appearance in the series, also elected to use the spitter.

Two Homers for Sears.
Sears duplicated his feat of Saturday by making two home runs during the game, the first in the first inning with none on and the second in the fourth inning with the bases empty.

Reddick Will Fight Fay Here Next Tuesday Night
Jack Reddick, light-heavyweight champion of Canada, will fight Harry Fay, Louisville light-heavyweight, in Atlanta next Tuesday night, October 1. It was announced last night by H. G. Gwiner, promoter of Atlanta's next fight show.

Announcement of the fight came after long negotiations with Fay's manager to get the Louisville boy into the local ring with Reddick. The battle is scheduled to go 12 rounds to a decision. Application for authority to stage the fight will be made to the city boxing commission within two days, Gwiner said last night.

Reddick came into town locally when he knocked out Bill McGowan of Atlanta at the auditorium less than a month ago. Fay also knocked out McGowan when the two met in Louisville about two months ago. Fay scored eight knockdowns before the knockout and Reddick slapped McGowan to the floor six times before the latter took the full count in the fifth round.

KID CARLIN GETS DECISION

New Orleans, La., September 29.—Kid Carlin, Joe Jeannette, La., was awarded the decision over Frankie Ash, English flyweight, at the end of a 15-round bout here tonight. The Englishman put up a game fight during the last three rounds, but was unable to overcome Carlin's lead in the earlier stages.

Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, and Eddie O'Dowd, of Columbus, Ohio, scheduled to meet here October 6 in a 15-round bout, were introduced from the ring.

—The— Rules of Golf

BY INNIS BROWN.

HELPING TO LOCATE BALL.
In tournament play, where a gallery is following a match, the question sometimes arises as to whether a spectator should properly take part in a search for a ball that becomes lost. We have heard the statement that the rules do not permit an outsider to help in such a search. As is frequently the case, the author of such a statement is either drawing on his imagination, or else has been misinformed. The rules make no reference to this matter, whatever. The question is purely one of sportsmanship, and the matter of whether an outsider should help in looking for the ball is pretty much the same as the matter of the opponent's helping in the search.

If any golf rules puzzle you, write Innis Brown, care of The Constitution Sports Editor, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope. He'll clear them for you.

FOR A BETTER SCORE.
One of the reasons why the player who is constantly trying for more distance on his shots meets with disappointment, lies in the fact that the tendency of what seems to him the natural effort is to defeat just what he is trying to do in this wise. His idea is to hit the ball harder, of course. Yet when he does this, he almost invariably hurries the swing too much. In other words, he starts the club set in 1911, the high-water mark of down too rapidly from the top of the modern baseball.

HORNSBY SETS TWO RECORDS
St. Louis, Mo., September 29.—Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal second baseman, today took a place beside the greatest hitters in baseball history. In the season closed here yesterday, Hornsby established two new records, one in batting average and the other in leading his league for the fifth consecutive season.

Hornsby finished with 227 hits in 142 games, making a season's average of .323, four points above George Sisler's mark of two years ago. Sisler had an approximate .420 average, which tied Ty Cobb's record in 1911, the high-water mark of down too rapidly from the top of the modern baseball.

SENATORS CLINCH FIRST AMERICAN LEAGUE FLAG

Harris, Johnson, Griffith Share Washington Honors

New York, September 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—Washington today clinched the first pennant it has had since breaking into big-league baseball exactly 40 years ago, and as the flag bearer of the American league, will fight it out with the New York Giants in the world's series starting next Saturday at the Capital City.

By defeating the Boston Red Sox this afternoon, the Senators brought to a climax one of the most spectacular diamond campaigns in history and accomplished the downfall of the New York Yankees, once proud world champions, who tonight repose in second place, two and a half games behind the leaders.

The Yankees have two games to play with Philadelphia tomorrow, while Washington has one more with the Red Sox, but regardless of the outcome of these, Miller Huggins must step off the American league throne after a three-year reign in favor of Stanley Harris, pilot of the Senators and the youngest manager who ever led a major-league club to victory.

Harris vs. McGraw. Washington's rise this year under the aggressive leadership of the 28-year-old Harris, a major leaguer only five years and experiencing his first managerial test, is one of the most dramatic achievements in baseball annals. This fighting youngster will meet one of the greatest strategists of the game when he takes the field against John McGraw, gray-haired "master mind" of the Giants.

Sharing the glory of Washington's triumph with Harris are Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, and Clark Griffith, now president and former manager of the club. In his 18th season, Johnson has been the mainstay of the team's twirling corps and now will realize a life-long ambition to pitch in a world's series.

Griffith, the "old fox," is credited with being "the man behind the gun" in the Senators' campaign, and having much to do with the club's successful strategy.

Washington's first flag in the 24 seasons the club has been in the American league was won after a terrific closing fight, in which Harris and his men came through to victory on foreign fields. It is taking no credit from the Senators' victory, however, to say that they were friendly fields. Nearly everywhere Washington has appeared in its final drive, fans eager for the overthrow of New York cheered the Senators on.

Tigers' Made Bid.

The Detroit Tigers hung on until near the finish and dealt what proved the knockout blow to the Yankees when they took three in a row from the champions on the last western trip.

Washington climbed slowly but surely to the top. From seventh place after a month of campaigning in May, they rose to fourth position the middle of June and to second on July 19. Shortly afterward they had a brief experience at setting the pace, only to have the Yankees sweep back to the top. The Senators clung to second position until August 28, when they displaced the Yankees with an 11-to-6 victory over the Huguenots. Thereafter Washington was never headed, although earlier this month the Yankees managed to pull up into a brief tie.

That last series with New York here, in which Washington took three out of four games, proved the turning point of the race. It gave the Senators the added bit of confidence they needed for the final dash and took something of the edge off Yankee hopes.

Meet Giants Saturday In First Game of Series; Cheered by Boston Fans

JOHNSON TO PITCH FIRST SERIES GAME

Boston, September 29.—Walter Johnson will face the Giants in the opening game of the world series.

This was the first announcement Stanley Harris, the Senators' youthful manager, made after his team clinched the American league pennant here Monday.

"Will he pitch?" said Harris. "Well there's one thing you can't go wrong on. Yes, sir, he's earned the honor of pitching the first game."

Boston, September 29.—Washington won its first American league pennant by defeating the Red Sox here today, 4 to 2, and earned the right to meet the New York Giants in the world series, which is to open in Washington Saturday.

When the Boston player was out in the ninth inning and the victory of the Senators was assured, a crowd of 10,000 Boston fans cheered the visiting team as it came from the field. Clark Griffith, the veteran owner, Stanley Harris, the "boy manager," and Walter Johnson, famous pitching ace, who will take part in his first world's series after 18 years in the big leagues, were applauded in turn.

Fred Marberry, relief pitcher of the Senators, who held Boston scoreless for the last six innings today, will be named the hero of this deciding game. He has acted as relief pitcher in all three games played here in this series and has worked in 50 games for Washington this season.

Left-hander John Zachary was one too effective in the first three innings, but Marberry stopped the Red Sox.

President Ben Johnson, of the American league, tonight selected Tom Connolly and William Dineen as the league's umpires in the world's series starting in Washington next Saturday. It was announced tonight from Chicago, Connolly, a veteran of twenty-four years of service, has officiated in six world's series.

Washington made its bid early for the victory that would give it the pennant regardless of what the New York Yankees do in their double-header against Philadelphia tomorrow.

In the first with two out, Rice singled off Fullerton through short, stole second and went all the way home when O'Neill's wild throw caromed off Lee's glove.

In the second the Senators made two runs. Peck singled and scored on singles by Ruel and Zachary. Ruel scored from third on Lincoln's single to right. These three runs off Fullerton were enough, as the events proved, but the Senators added a fourth off John Quinn in the eighth inning.

TONE REACTIONARY IN CURB MARKET

New York, September 29.—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in today's curb market with trading somewhat smaller in volume. With the exception of a break of 12 points in Standard Oil of Nebraska and 1 to 5 points in Magnolia Petroleum, each on a small turnover, the oil shares showed little effect of a further downward readjustment of crude prices. Ohio Oil

Public Utilities were decidedly mixed. Midwest Utilities was run up more than 3 points to 84 1/2 and United Light and Power, class A common, closed 43 3/8 higher at 53 1/2, while Commonwealth Power dropped 11 1/2. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore (new

National Tea broke 8 points to 245, while Gillette Safety Razor, Radio corporation preferred (new stock), and Yellow Taxicab closed a point or so

Speculative interest in the mining group was limited to a few issues, H. Withorne Mines showing a net gain of 3 points and Jib Consolidated dropping 5, these, with West End Extension, which was unchanged, being

New York, September 29.—Stock prices turned reactionary in today's market after an early period of firmness which was featured by the active buying of several railroad shares. Except for the marking up of the call money rate from 2 to 3 per cent which was generally believed to be temporary and due to the usual shifting of funds at the end of the month, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the selling movement. While trading was somewhat restricted by the absence of many traders over the Jewish holidays, total sales ran well above 800,000 shares. Standard industrials were sluggish throughout most of the session. U. S. Athens, Ga., September 29.—With an enrollment of 305 students as against 259 for this same time last year, there is a marked increase in the number of students enrolled in the school of commerce at the University of Georgia, and indications are that the year will be the best since the organization of the department, according to a statement by Dean R. P. Brooks. The University of Georgia school of commerce was the second high school organized in the state and since its inception has been the most rapidly growing department of the university. This year there are 31 seniors in the commerce school, 30 juniors, 92 sophomores and 152 freshmen.

The Advantages of Opportunity Day

A day, once each month, on which we offer timely merchandise of known quality at extreme low prices. Every department offers desirable, seasonable items, priced much under the usual for like quality. Inspection of qualities and prices will make this quite evident.

To serve our patrons better will be our earnest purpose on this second Opportunity Day. On the first occasion in August the response was so generous, so overwhelming, that our forces were badly put to it to see that everyone was promptly served. We have made special arrangements whereby we hope to give every visitor the prompt, courteous service that we feel should be expected of us.

Visitors Are Invited to Inspect Other Merchandise

Our entire stock, of course, is not specially priced for Opportunity day. We hope our visitors will take time to look around. It will pay. Not every item, of course—but, on the whole, we believe our average prices will be found lower than one is accustomed to pay for like high quality.

It is astonishing what few well-chosen Oriental Rugs can do in transforming otherwise prosaic rooms into charmingly artistic ones.

For instance, three or four small Oriental Rugs will take care of a fairly large space at less expense than would be required for one domestic rug—think of it—and they're so convenient to lay aside when the young people wish to dance.

Very effective results also are being achieved with small Oriental Rugs thrown about on one-tone carpets. They are displayed under four convenient groups—

Many Lovely Parties To Honor Several Charming Brides-Elect

Three buffet suppers for as many charming brides-elect will be the outstanding social events of this evening, when Mr. and Mrs. James A. Perry will honor the Perry-Ammonds wedding party. Following the rehearsal, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Barber will compliment the Holditch-Williamson wedding party, and Miss Martha Boynton will be hostess to the Horine-Van Valkenburg wedding party.

Bidding farewell to Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilmer was the large reception given last evening at "Wingfield," the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, on Peachtree road.

Members of the St. Luke's guild, the Woman's auxiliary and the Girls' Friendly society were hostesses of this lovely occasion. The vestrymen and their wives assisted in receiving and entertaining.

The home was beautifully decorated with profusion of early fall flowers. In the dining room the table was overlaid with an exquisite cloth and held as a central decoration a basket gracefully arranged with asters, dahlias and roses in the shades of pink, and lavender and white tapers burned in silver candle holders. Coffee was served in the library from a handsome silver service.

Mr. and Mrs. Slaton and Dr. and Mrs. Wilmer received the guests in a most informal and hospitable way.

Bridge Tea.

Mrs. Herbert Porter will entertain informally at a bridge-ten Thursday at her home on Park drive. Eight guests have been invited.

Peachtree Garden Club.

The members of the Peachtree Garden club met Monday afternoon at Woodville, the home of Mrs. Robert C. Alston, on Andrews drive.

Mrs. John W. Grant made an interesting and helpful talk on "What to Do in the Garden Now." Mrs. Albert Howell read an article from "House and Garden" by Richardson Wright, editor of that widely-read magazine.

Mrs. Edwin Johnson gave a talk concerning "The Garden and the Orchard Hothouses" that she saw this summer on a visit to Magnolia, Mass. In the absence of Mrs. Phinley Calhoun, president of the club, Mrs. John W. Grant, second vice president, presided at the meeting.

After the business session tea was served from an elegantly appointed table covered with a lace cloth and graced in the center by a silver basket filled with dahlias.

The members of the Peachtree Garden club include a group of young Atlanta matrons who are prominent in society and interested in horticulture.

His lectures on "Immigration" throughout the mid-western states last year attracted wide attention, and he has been asked to write the foreword of a book on the immigration question which is soon to be published.

The guests included Miss Cora Taton Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Enrico Leide and Mr. and Mrs. McCord Roberts.

Mrs. Beiter Entertains.

Mrs. Theo W. Beiter was hostess at her home on Hill street recently to the Merry Needle club.

Mrs. Beiter received her guests wearing a charming blue Georgette frock. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. M. A. Beiter, who wore a handsome gown of black satin.

The occasion was in honor of one of the club members birthday, Mrs. A. E. Coley. The club surprised her with a pretty gift in honor of the day.

The hostess served a dainty luncheon with a blue-hill motif effect.

Beautiful Sponsors for Football Game

Photograph by Wesley Hirschburg.

Miss Margaret Middleton, left, and Miss Martha Bell, two beautiful Atlanta girls who have been selected sponsors for the Virginia Military institute when the football team of that institution plays the Georgia School of Technology at Grant field on Saturday, October 4. Miss Middleton and Miss Bell have attended two commencements at V. M. I., where they were very popular.

Welcome Home Dinner.

A delightful welcome-home was given Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alder Smythe, recently returned from Europe, at the dinner given Sunday in their honor by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cotton Alston at "Woodville."

Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Alston, Mr. and Mrs. Smythe, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Memminger.

Ruth Draper Coming.

Ruth Draper, whom Percy Hammond, in the New York Tribune, has called "the best actress in the world," will be heard at the Woman's club auditorium Thursday evening, October 2, at 8:15 o'clock, in original character sketches. Miss Draper, who is an American girl of family distinction, began her career as an entertainer some years ago for private clubs and in the drawing rooms of society. After having achieved great success at home, she ventured abroad, where her talents were quickly recognized, and for three seasons she was the vogue in London, appearing before the king and queen. In Paris and Madrid she was also eminently successful. On her return to her native country she delighted capacity houses at theaters in New York, also in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore.

Miss Draper is the granddaughter of Charles A. Dana, famous in the journalistic world as the editor of the New York Sun, and she herself is the author of the various sketches presented by her. Without the aid of scenery or costumes, on an empty stage, she gives the effect of a room full of people, or turns a ballroom dress into rags with the quick twist of a shawl. This requires great power of dramatic portrayal as well as the faculty of enlisting the imagination of her audience.

Music Club Opening.

Uttering in the recital season, which promises to be a continuous round of artistic events for Atlanta music lovers, the first of the morning musicals of the Atlanta Music club will be given on Wednesday morning, October 1, at 10:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel. Laurence Powell Everhart, pianist, and chairman for the morning, has arranged the program for the opening meeting. Assisting him will be Miss Hazel Wood, second piano; George F. Lindner, first violin; Harry Pomar, second violin; Charles Fry, viola; Jose Gasca, cello, and Earle Foretich, double bass.

Subscribing members of the club who were out of town or who for any reason have failed to call for their tickets during the season sent sale now on, have had their tickets reserved for them. They may be obtained by calling at the box office of the Cable

Miss Holditch Is Honor Guest at Evening Party

Miss Dorothy Holditch and John Bryan Willingham, whose wedding will be a social event of Thursday, October 2, were delightfully entertained at a bridge-supper last evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. Goodloe Yancey, Jr., at their home on Springdale road.

The home was beautifully decorated throughout with pink roses in artistic arrangement.

Bridge was played and at 11 o'clock supper was served from the individual tables.

The table, at which the bride-elect and groom-elect were placed, held as a central decoration a mound of pinks. Over this exquisite centerpiece was an arch from which hung a dainty white bell. The ladies' places were marked by miniature brides, and small figures in the form of a groom marked the places of the men.

Little baskets in the shape of roses held the almonds and mints. Pink candles burned in silver candle holders.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Holditch assisted Mr. and Mrs. Yancey in entertaining.

Miss Holditch was a lovely figure wearing a gown of orchid-colored sequins fashioned over flesh chiffon.

Mrs. Holditch, the young bride-elect's mother, was gowned in black chiffon over gold cloth.

Mrs. Yancey wore a lovely gown of rose chiffon and silver, beautifully trimmed with ostrich.

Covers were laid at the bride-elect's table for Miss Holditch, Miss Laura Nott, Miss Inez Willingham, Miss Margaret Colbert, Mr. Willingham, Fred Willingham, Irving Willingham and Weyman Willingham.

The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Holditch, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Culpepper, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Peabody, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Barber, Mrs. George Nott, of East Orange, N. J., grandmother of Miss Holditch; Mrs. Theodore Hand, Roy Sims, Bernard Willingham and Ernest Welborn.

Miss Margaret Colbert was hostess at a luncheon on Monday at the Capital city club in compliment to Miss Holditch.

As Miss Belle, Mrs. McCrane is known and loved by a wide circle of friends in Albany, where she has made her home with her sister, Mrs. Tillman Jones, for some time. Mr. McCrane is formerly of Sparks, Ga., but is now engaged in business in Leesburg, Fla., and the couple left immediately after the ceremony for Leesburg, where they will make their home.

W. Memminger officiating. Only the immediate family and a few close friends were present.

The bride was becomingly gowned in gray charmeuse with hat to match. She wore a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

Carter-Murray.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles La Fayette Carter, of 10 Kennesaw avenue, of the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Stuart P. Murray, which was solemnized in Opelika, Ala.

Savannah Weddings.

Savannah, Ga., September 29.—(Special.)—Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas James McEllum, Sr., to the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Genevieve, to Adolphus Newton Manney on Tuesday evening, October 7, at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Mary C. Judge. Many pre-nuptial parties are planned for the bride during the next week.

The marriage of Miss Leslie Elizabeth Bourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bourne, will take place on Thursday evening, October 2, to James Edward McAleer, the Rev. B. E. Whittington, pastor of Grace church, to officiate. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents.

An interesting wedding of this week will be on Thursday afternoon, October 2, at 5 o'clock at the Sacred Heart church, when Miss Mary Frances Conroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Conroy, becomes the bride of Eugene Clarence Prendergast. A reception will follow the marriage. A number of pretty parties are being given in honor of the bride.

A noon wedding on Thursday, September 30, is of unusual interest to many, when Miss Ethel Amelia Solter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Solter, is united in marriage at the Sacred Heart church, the Rev. Father Maurice, O. S. B., officiating. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Label the Screens.

It might be well to put a small label on each screen before packing it away, on which is written the room and window in which it belongs. Screens can easily be washed off when the screen is cleaned in the spring and much fruitless time wasted in fitting will be avoided.

Trouble with Mayonnaise.

Salt added will sometimes hold together dubious mayonnaise. Frequently in making mayonnaise too little egg yolk is used for the amount of oil.

If, when nearly all the oil has been added, it begins to separate a bit, add the vinegar and stir thoroughly. It will oftentimes straighten out and the rest of the oil can be added without worry.

The Emory Woman's club will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Goodrich White instead of Mrs. Jack's, as announced in Sunday's paper.

Brenau Colony Meets.
The Brenau Colony of Atlanta held its regular quarterly meeting Monday afternoon in the salon of the Capital City club. Mrs. Omar F. Elder, president, presided, and important matters of business were brought before the club, among which was the report of the ways and means committee.

Mrs. William Owens, president of the general alumnae of Brenau college-conservatory, was chairman of the program, and a delightful group of numbers was rendered by local artists.

Leonard White, who for the past two years has had great success in the studio of Mrs. Carter-Waddell in

New York and whose artistic work at the Howard theater last summer caused much favorable comment, rendered an eccentric feature dance, "Nola," in costume, assisted by Frankiska Mueller.

Little Marguerite Taylor, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor was the pianist of the occasion. Her two Bach preludes and Beethoven's minuet were rendered charmingly.

Assisting Mrs. Owens were the members of her group of the colony membership.

After the business meeting and program, tea was served during the social hour. Thirty-five members were present.

Rebekah Lodge Meets.
All members of Atlanta Rebekah Lodge, No. 62, I. O. O. F., are requested to be present on Thursday night, October 2, at 7:30 o'clock, 410 Hemphill avenue. The meeting is of importance.

The evening class will be held at the First Congregational church at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Mrs. A. W. Harrington will lead the meetings and a cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to attend.

Modern Topics Club.
The Modern Topics club will meet Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock with Mrs. F. W. Hadley, 87 Gordon street. Mrs. T. D. Body will give the reading for the morning.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS
In the Preserving Kettle. Before making jam, preserves, marmalades, etc., butter the bottom of the preserving kettle. There will be less danger of burning or boiling over if this is done.

Wash Before Using.
Oranges and lemons should be scrubbed with a vegetable brush before using. The fruit has been handled by doubtful hands and has gathered many microbes before it has reached us.

POEMS THAT LIVE
PRAISE.
Dear, they are praising your beauty,
The grass and the sky;
The sky in a silence of wonder,
The grass in a sigh.

I too would sing for your praising,
Dearest, had I
Speech as the whispering grass,
Or the silent sky.

These have an art for the praising,
Beauty so high.
Sweet, you are praised in a silence,
Sung in a sigh.

Help Always Given Club Work Proves Index to Marked Talent

Photograph by Mathewson & Price, Staff Photographers.

Mrs. H. G. Carnes, a leader in club and business life, who was accorded special honors at a recent national insurance convention.

BY MRS. MCCORD ROBERTS.
"Organized women are not conscious of their power," declares one highly organized writer, who forthwith steps more heavily on this unconsciousness than would seem possible in one whose slenderness is as pronounced as Ida Clyde Clarke's. But for an illustration of this unconsciousness, and for a further example of sequence between well-doing and good results, Mrs. H. G. Carnes, of Atlanta, should be picked out by the spot light.

Recently, Mrs. Carnes had the honor of being selected as the only woman speaker at the national convention of the Fidelity Mutual Insurance company, held at Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, Va. Something like 300 men and 35 women attended as delegates, each one having qualified for this privilege by writing insurance policies often enough to produce a given total of business. Within this body of highly trained salespeople was a tiny group which had earned the title of "The Leaders' Club," through having sold one or more policies each week of the entire year. Mrs. Carnes was the only woman in the United States who qualified as a member of this club, and her address at the convention had for its subject, "How I Secured An Application A Week."

Barely more than one year ago Mrs. Carnes wrote her first insurance policy, her initial act as a business woman, all unconscious that in previous years she had been acquiring a profession and establishing for herself that asset highly valued in commercial circles—the good will of the community. For in those preceding years Mrs. Carnes had given so generously of herself to the Atlanta Woman's club and the Woman's Board of Oglethorpe university, that in both organizations it had become a habit at every critical moment to say "Mrs. Carnes will help us." And Mrs. Carnes' help was given invariably to the one job hardest to get club women to undertake, the selling of tickets to benefit, the asking of contributions from the tightest of tight-wads. Strange to say, neither Mrs. Carnes nor her fellow workers were conscious in those days of hectic struggle to put these organizations on the highway to success that her remarkable ability to induce the public to absorb an utterly unreasonable batch of tickets or make up a staggering gift in money was an index to a talent most eagerly sought for in the business world. Everybody thought only of her cheerful willingness to help in every good undertaking and asked help of her, which she gave and gave until one day by the sequence of things what she was doing to find herself nationally distinguished. That in these days when schools and universities are teaching salesmanship as a science and great industries are ranking it as an art.

Going back to Mrs. Clarke and her declaration that women are unconscious in their organized work of their potentialities for solid accomplishment, she says:

"Experience? Ye gods, as if the brains and the ability we put into running these superorganizations of ours wouldn't fit us to do the kind of things men are doing! Why, holding a congressional job is child's play compared to being chairman of a division or something in a woman's organization."

Stepped on the gas—

Where there are flies and no screens there is apt to be death and no brains.

The only safe surface water is melted snow from an uninhabited water shed.

There is an uncanny association between the shallow well and the shallow grave.

Betting a life insurance company that you won't live twenty years is a good bet if you lose.

Soon we'll fire the furnace up

Another argument in favor of the vacuum cleaner, as against the broom, is that you can dodge it better.

BY VIOLET DARE

XXXVIII—A CRUEL TRICK.

Mary's journey to Seattle was delightfully leisurely; by boat from Vancouver, which she loved, to Victoria, where she took advantage of a few hours' stop to ride on a sight-seeing trolley, from which she could look down over high walls into the beautiful gardens adjoining private residences; then on again through Puget Sound, to Seattle.

She loved the city, with its steep, picturesque hills and its beautiful views; she had never been in that corner of the west before, and it was as stimulating as her hopes for the future. She registered at the hotel whose name she had given Bruce in her will, and was just turning from the desk to follow the boy who carried her luggage when a man stepped up and introduced himself as a representative of an eastern weekly that devoted its attention to news of society folk all over the country. In his hand he held a paper, and as she seated herself in a corner of the lobby he showed her a news item. "According to this, your husband is divorcing you, Lady Cavendish," he began. Is that true? This report intimates that another man is concerned in the case, a man who is to meet you here? What have you to say about that? Is it true that you have not been happy with your husband?

"Oh, please," Mary lifted her hand as if to shield herself from his importunities. She had met newspaper men before, and had been somewhat torn only to courtesy from them; she was defenseless against this onslaught of impudence, and hardly knew what to say.

But he gave her no peace. He ignored her protestations that she had nothing to say. The information had come from the Raymond's ranch, where her husband was still staying. It said that he would return to the east at once to begin divorce proceedings. Mary forgot herself for a moment then, exclaiming: "Oh, no; he is going to Mexico?"

"When is he going to divorce you? Now, Lady Cavendish, don't you think you'd better tell me the truth about this? What is it, just a little quarrel, or is there something in this rumor that you and he never have got along very well, and—

"Oh, you are insufferable!" cried Mary, her eyes blazing. What I do in my own affair, not yours! I shall say nothing more!" She brushed past him and hurried to the nearest elevator, trembling with anger.

It seemed incredible that a man had sent out any information regarding her leaving. He was gentleman enough not to do that. It must have been Wilma Raymond, who always hated her. Wilma loved to twist other people's lives into tangles and then stand back, malicious and Don't You Think You Had Better Tell Me The Truth?

amused, as she watched their efforts to right the wrong she had done. The boy it was on a hill standing at the window. Mary could look down over the city to the glimmering waters of Puget Sound. Wincing under the blow that had been dealt her, she had done and demanded an explanation. Second thought condemned that plan. She walked restlessly about the room, frantic at the thought of the time that must elapse before Bruce could reach the city. He had told her, on that afternoon they spent at Long Beach months before, of a hasty trip from Alaska that he had made by train and aeroplane, but she had no means of knowing how long it would take if he came in that same way again. That had been merely a lucky chance, too; there might not be such an opportunity now.

"Oh, I've made such a muddle of my life!" she cried despairingly. "If only I could have learned how to do things differently when I was a child, if only I could have been brought up to realize that you can't get anything out of life by scheming and planning! I could have been taught to earn my living, instead of marrying money; I could have been taught to be true to love, even when it seemed as if I'd lost it; I could have loved by doing it. Why should I be held to the past that I hate, when I'm willing to give up everything that I gained by it for the sake of the future?"

But there was no one to answer her questions.

She had dinner sent to her room, and ordered the evening papers brought with it. She had hardly dared hope that they would ignore the item about Nigel and herself; she could only hope that they would be kind.

The better papers were. The yellow lower ones pounced with joy on the shattered Romance of Beauty and English Lord, as the headlines in one of them called it.

Her life was reviewed—her debut, her engagement, his murder and the shadow that suspicion had cast on her, which was cleared away only when Camilla Waite dispelled it. Then her romantic marriage to Nigel Cavendish, the honeymoon abroad and now its sequel. "Beautiful Mary Howard wrecks another life," announced one sensational daily.

Mary threw herself on the bed and sobbed. Never before had she completely given up. But now it seemed as if the end had come. For how could she claim Bruce's love, when she must go to him branded with the marks of such disgrace?

Read How Mrs. Walsh Was Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was for I suffered with a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, then would come weak spells. I was so weak I would think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My work was a burden to me. I was not able to do my household half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my household work and worked in the garden a good bit. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true." Mrs. JOHN W. WALSH, R. No. 1, Box 26, Mannington, West Virginia.

Georgia Lady Says Cardui Proved To Be Just What She Needed and Her Health Has Become Normal Again.

Te. Tr., Ga.—After having taken Cardui on several occasions in the last eight years, Mrs. J. D. Lamb, of this place, says she is glad to tell how she was benefited.

"I have taken Cardui both before and after the birth of my last four children," she says, "and I have found it to be just what I needed at that time."

"Before my children came I would be weak and sickly—looked as if my strength slipped away."

"After they were born, I did not pick up right at first somehow. I was slow in getting back my strength. The first time I took Cardui was eight years ago, when I had what other women said and I decided to try it myself. I found it was just what I needed. It filled the bill exactly, so I have taken it ever since. It gives me strength and builds me up so that I can do my work and care for my family."

"Lately I have been troubled with irregularity. This has been very weakening and troublesome. I sent for a bottle of Cardui and I had not finished taking it before I felt much better. I continued to take it, and my health has become normal."

Cardui should help you. Try it.

Time Limit Expires For Filing Capital Stock Tax Returns

The final date for filing such returns was extended from July 31, the usual limit on date of filing such returns, until September 30. Corporations of this state, therefore, have had a 60-day extension in which to file their capital stock returns.

All corporations of every description, whether active or inactive operating or not operating, must file a capital stock return and all active corporations, not specifically exempt, whose net worth is more than $5,000 must pay capital stock tax. The commissioner of internal revenue only is authorized to determine whether or not a corporation is liable for the payment of tax in cases where exemption is claimed, the statement sets out.

FEDERAL BOARD SHOULD HEAR ROW ON RATES ON GAS

Freight rates on gasoline between New Orleans and Atlanta are matters for the interstate commerce commission to handle, it was stated Monday by E. M. Price, rate expert of the Georgia public service commission, who stated that there has been no request for an investigation by the public service commission, following publication charges that there was a disparity of rates by the railroad in favor of other cities.

This morning the commission is scheduled to hear the application of the Savannah Light and Power company for permission to issue $250,000 worth of refunding stock, and an application of the Washington Telephone company for a revision of the division of toll rates in Wilkes county.

Dr. Dodd, who is one of the leading ministers of the southern Baptist convention, will be notified of his call immediately, it was stated, and it is understood that the chamber of commerce, Governor Walker and other prominent Atlantans will request him to accept the call.

He has been pastor of the Shreveport church for the last 13 years and during his pastorate a $400,000 church has been erected and the membership has been increased 50 percent, it was stated. Dr. Dodd is chairman of the 1924 annual convention of the Southern Baptist convention which will hold its annual meeting in Memphis, Tenn., next May.

According to a telegram from Dr. Dodd Monday morning he is leaving Shreveport for a three weeks' trip through Oklahoma and Arkansas in the interest of the Southern Baptist convention and will not be able to give his answer until he returns.

FRAUD IS CHARGED TO BANKER COOK

Affairs assumed another sudden shift Monday for H. W. Cook, bankrupt banker and farmer of Campbell county, when J. H. M. Curre, receiver of the alleged bankrupt estate, requested Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of district federal court, to approve a petition in which it is asked that the banker and his wife be restrained from further disposing of their property, leaving the petition upon the assertion that Cook has transferred certain property to his wife in an effort to "defraud creditors."

Judge Sibley signed an order giving permission for filing of the petition. He expressed a willingness to hold further hearings on the petition on October 4, at which time the question of an injunction will be determined.

The receiver urged in his petition that Cook and his wife be restrained from disposing of crops grown on their property. These crops, it was set forth, will reach the value of $22,000.

The petition alleges that certain property was transferred by Cook to his wife, apparently on April 3, 1922, but declares that actual transfer was not made until the spring of this year. It also sets forth that Cook and his wife knew the estate to be insolvent.

at the time the transfer was made. It is further asserted that Mrs. Cook assumed the title to the property "for the sole purpose of covering up and concealing his property from creditors."

Cook filed a petition of voluntary bankruptcy in federal court in Atlanta on September 13. This action came soon after his arrest on charges involving alleged violation of the Mann act, department of justice agents serving the warrant upon information furnished them by the father of a young woman who lived on one of Cook's farms. The alleged white slavery case has not yet come up for trial.

Red Riding Hood

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.
Mrs. Morgan Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropic and social lights, adventures for a young woman to work in her apartment morning. The advertisement is answered by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. In spite of the fact that she admits a desire to hide her identity, Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Osborne.
Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother, Mrs. Van Dorn; a young brother, Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother, Bertie, who is away. Sally Willis, Mrs. Schuyler's god-daughter, calls during the course of the morning.
The second morning of her employment Hope faints after receiving a mysterious telephone call. Mrs. Schuyler summons Dr. Morace Osborne.

INSTALLMENT XIV. MORE MYSTERIES.

Hope began to rise, as if the interview were over, but Dr. Osborne stopped her with a gesture. He was inclined to believe she had made up the detail of the dream to put him off the inquiry. Probably she had prepared this whole story while he was at luncheon.

"It doesn't explain the noise itself or its effect on Mrs. Schuyler," he austere pointed out.

"She was startled by my nervousness—so she must have imagined things, just as I did. How could there have been any sound like a real howl?"

Her voice was natural, almost eager, and she looked at him with steady eyes. He realized he would get little more from her, if he got anything, but he continued to ask questions:

"That's all I can say."

"Is that dream what has been worrying you?"

"Yes, that and other things."

"What are the other things?"

"I can't tell you."

"If the noise was imaginary, what frightened you?"

"Why—as I've said—couldn't it have been the resemblance to my dream?"

"I'm asking questions, young lady, not answering them," he reminded her.

"You see, the dream is really a horrible one," she went on with her new air of eagerness to explain. "I'm attacked by a wolf—I see him coming—often he actually gets me. And he always howls. So, naturally, any roar or whistle through the instrument that sounded like a howl would startle me for a moment, until I had to think—"

"You really have this dream?"

"I assure you, doctor, I really have it."

"Often?"

"Very often indeed—sometimes three or four nights a week. Then I deliberately keep myself awake for two or three nights because I dread having it again—and, of course, that's bad for me. You can see what condition my nerves are getting into."

He believed her now. She had the dream, all right. But, of course, the dream did not explain that noise over the telephone wire, a noise both she and Maud Schuyler had distinctly heard. Words, too—Maud had spoken words—"Red Riding Hood." Something to think about here.

His patient was speaking again.

"Please don't ask me anything more! I'm too nervous. I don't think I'd have told you this much if I'd been myself," she added, spiritedly.

Osborne rose and walked to the window, where he gazed unseeing at the silhouette of the elevated railway, clear cut against the eastern sky. He was interested in this case, and he had a rooted objection to being balked in his pursuit of information he needed in his work. At last he turned toward her.

"Look here," he said. "I've lived long enough to know that odd things happen. We're a lot of queer people in New York in these post-war years—exiles from many lands, victims of abnormal conditions all over the world. Are you mixed up with anything of a political nature, or with any group or gang who are using you for their own purpose? Was that noise a signal from them?"

Her lips set and she replied with deliberate patience.

"I've done my best to explain that telephone episode to you, doctor."

"That's all you'll say?"

"That's all I can say. I've told you about the dream."

They were at an impasse. He remembered their bargain.

"You're really fit to go uptown," he muttered, studying her with his characteristic frown. "If you'll give me that address in East Seventieth street I'll stop there and personally explain that you're too ill to come today."

The look she gave him was an odd one. Later the memory of it frequently returned to him.

"Of course I can't give you the address, and I haven't had the slightest idea of letting you take me there. But if you'll drop me on the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventieth street I shall be grateful. If not, I must go in the subway."

He bowed ironically.

"More mysteries?—You don't leave one much to say."

"Please don't think I'm ungrateful."

"No. I only think you're foolish, and unnecessarily cautious. I'm sure Mrs. Schuyler and I could help you if you'd let us."

A brisk tap on the door was followed by the entrance of Maud Schuyler, whose look of concern gave way in quick succession to expressions of surprise and relief.

"Why, you're up!" she joyously cried. "My dear girl, I'm so glad!"

"She oughtn't to be up," the doctor muttered.

"I've got to go to my afternoon work. You understand that, Mrs. Schuyler. Suppose you were waiting for me here? And there's one thing I want to say," the secretary hurried on. "I've just told Doctor—"

"Doctor Osborne," the other woman mechanically prompted.

"Doctor Osborne," the secretary continued, "that I've never faint before. So you needn't be afraid I shall form the fainting habit, or that you'll be disturbed like this again, if you're good enough to keep me on."

"You're sure of that?" Her employer spoke with a pathetic combination of hope and doubt.

"I'm not sure of anything," the girl admitted. "But I certainly don't intend to vie with your rugs as an adornment to your floors."

Miss Emerson had pulled herself together. Even Osborne mentally acknowledged this. The color had returned to her face. Her voice was natural and her manner cool and collected. She smiled at Mrs. Schuyler.

"Shall you expect me in the morning?"

Maud Schuyler remained silent for a moment, her round blue eyes uncertain, her resolution wavering like a flame in a wind. That this situation was upsetting went without saying. On the other hand, it might be more upsetting to start another hopeless quest for a morning helper, and the picture of Sally looming in the office as a possible successor to the girl before her was most upsetting of all. Moreover, Mrs. Schuyler recalled the mass of afternoon letters which had been dumped on the hall table by Kawa, who, in the absence of the new employees, had aloofly answered the door bell and taken in the mail as if it were something unpleasant to his nostrils.

"We'll try it a day or two longer," she decided, aloud, under the influence of these compelling reflections.

"Thank you."

The secretary started toward the door and Doctor Osborne, after standing back to let Mrs. Schuyler pass him, followed them both into the hall.

"I'll take you as far as Fifth avenue and Seventieth street," he announced to his patient.

"That's awfully good of you," she sweetly assured him.

The girl had pluck. She had been scared, as the doctor mentally expressed it, "out of a year's growth," but it was plain that fear no longer held her by the throat. On the contrary, she now had herself well in hand and was prepared to match her wits against his or any one's.

Rankin Urges Prompt Report On Abandoned Cotton Acres

Tupelo, Miss., September 29.—In a telegram today to Secretary Wallace, of the department of agriculture, Representative John E. Rankin, chairman of the congressional committee on the readjustment of crop estimates and ginners' reports, urged that figures collected by the department showing cotton acreage abandonment for the year be made public simultaneously with the condition report to be issued early in October, instead of withholding the figures until publication of the December estimates.

Mr. Rankin declared that the acreage abandonment this year "was record-breaking, owing to excessive rains throughout the cotton belt," and expressed the opinion that it would be a grave injustice to both the producers and consumers of cotton to hold this vital information from the public until December.

The text of Mr. Rankin's telegram follows:

"I understand the department of agriculture has collected statistics showing the amount of cotton acreage that has been abandoned but that it proposes to withhold this information from the public until its December report. As a member of congress and as chairman of the committee on the readjustment of crop estimates and ginners' reports, I want to insist that the figures showing the number of acres abandoned according to the statistics gathered, be made public along with the next crop condition report early in October.

"The acreage abandonment of cotton this year was record-breaking, owing to the excessive rains throughout the cotton belt during the late spring and early summer. In my opinion it would be a grave injustice to both the producers and the consumers of cotton to withhold this vital information from the public until its December report. As a member of congress and as chairman of the committee on the readjustment of crop estimates and ginners' reports, I want to insist that the figures showing the number of acres abandoned according to the statistics gathered, be made public along with the next crop condition report early in October.

"Please give this matter your immediate attention.

"Feet of Clay." (At the Howard.)

In his latest production, "Feet of Clay," Cecil B. DeMille of the alluring flavored cinema concoctions has reached in all directions to make his latest offering strictly 1924.

The heroine, played by the "new" find, Vera Reynolds, is the new type to whom the public interest has turned.

DeMille, grown from parties and petting at 17 to marriage and responsibilities at 21. Miss Reynolds has surely made a hit with the picture fans in "Feet of Clay." Her acting cannot be overpraised.

DeMille's "Feet of Clay" is a picture in a fight with a shark protecting Miss Reynolds. The incident provides the starting point for an interesting flock of situations, the central one of which is the necessity of a wife having to support her husband. The cast in this production is hand-picked with Victor Varconi, Ricardo Cortez, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff in the lineup.

"The Mystery of Mah Jongg," a picture showing the dos and don'ts of this fascinating old Chinese game, is a very rare picture in the line of pictures down with an unusual character impersonations. This child is all of what she is billed and was forced to return for encores on three different occasions.

"The Female." (At the Rialto.)

If there are any benighted individuals who are still of the opinion that women are "the weaker sex" we bid them hasten down to the Rialto theater where "The Female," Betty Compson's latest starring picture, is showing after a get-away for the week's run that stamps her as a very effective popular entertainer. We guarantee they will admit they were all wrong about the weaker sex. It not only successfully proves that the female of the species is the stronger, but it also shows the metamorphosis love effects when it happens to strike an illiterate Little Boer girl whose unique experience it was to be married and saved in a wild jungle by a mother lioness. Warner Baxter and Noah Beery have fine roles in the supporting cast.

The comedy is "Spring Fever," and the International Newsreel is of interest.

"The Sea Hawk." (At the Metropolitan.)

Once in a long time there comes to the screen a photoplay of such magnitude, such general excellence and such stirring appeal as to lift it high above all others and establish it as a picture of the first rank for entertainment. Such a photoplay is "The Sea Hawk," at the Metropolitan theater.

"The Sea Hawk" is that rare combination of an exceptionally fine story, a theme which grips one at the outset and tightens it with each succeeding scene, a superb piece of direction and a remarkable historical demonstration by two of the most unusual large and well-known cast.

In "The Sea Hawk" Sabatini lives up to his title of "the modern Dumas," a romance between Sir Oliver and Rosamund is one of the most unusual the screen has known, his situations are logical and decidedly entertaining, and he has given his characters real work to do.

Girl Novelist Successful.

LYRIC "SECRETS" GETS BIG CROWD ON FIRST NIGHT

"Secrets," an enthralling love story by May Edington, afforded Lyric theater patrons a relaxing and almost inspiring change Monday night, from the farce comedy themes that have been offered by the popular stock company during recent weeks.

It also afforded Miss Edith King and Wilfred Lytell, the Lyric's pair of Broadway stars, magnificent chances at the kind of acting that produces real thrills, and gave Director Edwin Vail and the technical staff an opportunity to contrive a series of effective and beautiful stage settings.

"If I had discovered that any member of our official group had originated or participated in the agitation, I would have discovered the truth," said Mr. Butler, in a conversation with the newspaper correspondents, the chairman added that he thought the decision would "make no particular difference" in the California vote in the election.

Mr. Butler conceded that La Follette was "making advances" in the state of Washington, but thought he would not carry it. He declined to predict how many states Senator La Follette would carry or to say in what states he believed John W. Davis, the democratic nominee, would run third.

"I don't believe Mr. Davis made a great impression on his western trip," said Mr. Butler. "He will not carry a state west of the Mississippi river."

He added that in some states there "is no Davis movement."

Mr. Butler said: "I should think Colonel Roosevelt's nomination for governor of New York would help him. It will get out the vote and Mr. Roosevelt will conduct a vigorous campaign."

The chairman said the president would carry New York, "more than 125,000," and that Illinois and Indiana, as well as Ohio, were "safe."

"The danger of the election of a president by the house of representatives is now very remote," he said, "but I don't see how anybody can conceive that Davis will be elected by the house."

Questioned about expenditures of the national committee, Mr. Butler declined to give figures, but said that the budget would be revised about October 1. He added that all bills had been passed by the house.

Mr. Butler will remain in New York until Wednesday or Thursday, going then to Washington.

It is largely Miss King's play. In epilogue and prologue she displayed Monday night a mastery of characterization not only in acting but in consummate artistic make-up, portraying a handsome old woman, while in the main play she is first a young girl, then a young mother and then a middle-aged matron. In each period she was convincing, delightful to look upon and magnificent in every line. Lytell was a perfect foil for her, carrying the part of the husband splendidly in each succeeding period.

The second act, incidentally, developed some real sensations when Miss King, Lytell, Will Lloyd and Gavin Harris participate in a pistol battle that raged for several minutes on the stage.

The play will be presented each night the rest of the week and at matinee performances today, Thursday and Saturday, and will be well worth seeing.

CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Loew's Theater OFFERS FEATURE BILL THIS WEEK

Almost the entire vaudeville offering at Loew's Grand theater this week is centered around two very funny comedians, Joe Burns and Murray Kisser. They introduce themselves to the audience in the third act, a specialty of their own; pass like a whirl through the fourth, "The Barber of Seville," and with two other almost equally as funny, their final curtain calls in the fifth. From the beginning of the third act, until the end of the fourth, the audience is in a fight with a shark protecting Miss Reynolds. The incident provides the starting point for an interesting flock of situations, the central one of which is the necessity of a wife having to support her husband. The cast in this production is hand-picked with Victor Varconi, Ricardo Cortez, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff in the lineup.

T. J. BARFIELD DIES AT CAMPBELL HOME

T. J. Barfield, one of the oldest residents of Campbell county, died Monday morning at his home in Palmetto, Ga., in his ninetieth year. Mr. Barfield was a Confederate veteran, and a member of the Masonic order for thirty years. Mr. Barfield was a member of the Methodist church for more than sixty years. He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Mary Ballard, two brothers, Louis and Marion Barfield. Funeral services will be announced later by A. C. Hemperly, funeral director, of East Point.

$8,500 Is Voted
By Committee
For Fire Station

Appropriation of $8,500 for the proposed ninth ward fire engine house was voted Monday by the finance committee of city council, contingent on an appropriation of $10,000 for the county, needed to complete the $30,000 fund for construction of the building. An appropriation of $12,500 for the engine house was voted by council in January.

The annual October revision of the city finance sheet also was taken up at executive session, and while work

Plans and specifications for the ninth ward engine house already have been completed and work will be started as soon as the appropriation is made by Fulton county. The fire engine house will serve the Highland Virginia avenue district.

City Controller R. Graham West told members of the committee that the present rate revenues anticipated from city water, for which appropriations already have been made, will fall approximately $175,000 short at the end of the year. Receipts of $1,145,000 have been collected to date, he said, whereas $1,777,000 was anticipated.

Indications are that 1925 will be one of the worst financial years that the city has faced for a long time, a member of the committee said.

With anticipated water receipts falling $175,000 short, a drop of approximately $300,000 in general taxes, and a loan of $350,000 negotiated in order to maintain schools, the city probably will face a deficit of nearly $700,000.

Planning Divorce;
Freckleton Is Slain
By Wife's Bullet

Miami, Fla., September 29.—While postoffice crowd looked on, Mrs. Hattie Freckleton, 35, shot and killed her husband, Joseph C. Freckleton, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The pair were to have met in an attorney's office nearby at the time for the purpose of arranging for a divorce.

"When he approached, I smiled at him," the woman told the police. "He said 'Go to hell' and I shot him."

The dead man was a painter and interior decorator living at Coconut Grove, Fla.

Immediately after the shooting Mrs. Freckleton was disarmed by C. J. Santucci, a policeman. She was turned over to a traffic policeman, who locked her up at the central police station.

"Is he dead?" the woman inquired and when informed her bullet had been fatal, she demanded her powder puff.

"He wanted to get rid of me to make another woman," she declared, "but he had another guess coming."

BODIES OF COUSINS FOUND; DUEL BLAMED

Johnson City, Tenn., September 29.—John and Conway Sams, first cousins, whose bodies were found near their homes near Erwin today, probably killed each other, a coroner's jury decided this morning. Although it was believed that the men had fought a duel, authorities are holding Dewey Sams, a brother of John, on suspicion that he may have had a hand in the battle.

The bodies of the two men were found near Higgins creek, shot through the neck, which was broken, and Conway was shot through the head.

Investigation indicated, according to officials that the men died in a duel but, Dewey Sams arrested after a rifle, belonging to him was found near the scene. Dewey is being held pending further investigation.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES HALTED BY SHOOTING

Los Angeles, September 29.—Harry Denny was killed and a man and woman were wounded in the congregation of Second Synagogue at Clifford and Glendale boulevards here during Jewish festival services today when Sol Ostrow suddenly drew a pistol during the ceremonies and started shooting. Ostrow was captured.

After killing Denny and wounding the other two, Ostrow's pistol jammed, according to a report to the police, and he rushed from the synagogue, leaving the congregation in a panic. He was captured outside and angry worshippers threatened to mob him, but a patrolman rushed him to a receiving hospital where the bruises and cuts he received at the hands of the crowd were treated.

The two wounded were Bennie Benasty, 28, shot in the leg, and Mrs. Fannie Klein, 53, shot in the shoulder.
